Council Approves $857,000 Budget For Operation Of City In 1970

Circleville City Council approved a budget totaling $857,286.40 for 1970 at the final 1969 meeting of the legislative body Tuesday.

In addition to acting on the 1970 budget, the councilmen granted a number of wage increases and approved the appointment of Snap Ankrom to the city board of recreation by Mayor Richard Gerhardt.

The ordinance which would authorize Safety Director Robert Adkins to enter into a contract for a LEADS communication system for the Police Department was held for a third reading, after a motion to suspend the rules so a vote on the measure could be held failed to gain approval.

A total of $150 was transferred from accounts within the police department budget to prisoners for the salaries of radio operators.

THE councilmen created the position of supervisor for the income tax department within the city auditor's department and established an annual salary of $600 for the post.

The salary of city treasurer was set at $1,000 per year; humane officer, $940; council clerk, $1,200; clerk of the city health department, $3,900; municipal court clerk, $4,680; municipal court deputy clerk, $3,780; municipal court bailiff, $3,840; extra help, municipal court, $500.

Councilman David Goldschmidt, chairman of the finance committee, told his fellow solons the budget was the best his committee could come up with and stay within the estimated income for 1970.

Two Veterans End Terms On Council

Two councilmen completed their present terms on Circleville's legislative body Tuesday, although neither was ready to concede he was ready to withdraw completely from the political scene.

Both John Jenkins and Noble Barr have served the city for many years.

Jenkins was first appointed to council in March of 1958, and has been re-elected every term since except the most recent primary when he lost to Samuel (Pete) Cook for the second ward post.

During his tenure, Jenkins has seen the construction of a new water plant and water department building, the updating of both the police and fire departments, the installation of the cross walk lights and warning lights at the schools, the construction of the north storm sewer, addition of new parks to the city park system and improved lighting for the city streets.

A VETERAN member of council's safety committee, he offered some suggestions for safety which he would like to see carried out, including a no left turn for east bound Main Street traffic at Western Avenue, and elimination of left turns into the First National and Savings Bank drive-in facilities.

At Western Avenue, Jenkins said that during peak traffic periods motorists waiting to make a left turn could force traffic to stop on the railroad track, creating a hazard.

At the banks, traffic sometimes backs up into the intersections while motorists are waiting to turn left.

Jenkins complimented the present members of council, saying that it was the hardest working and most conscientious group he could remember.

Barr has served just one term as councilman at large. He was defeated by Boyd Horn in the

Pike County Plane Blast Fatal To 6

WAVERLY, Ohio (AP)—Six persons died today when a two-engine Cessna plane crashed into a hillside and burned about eight miles north of the Atomic Energy Commission's plant in Pike County.

Authorities said the plane belonged to Winegardner-Hammonds Operations, Inc., a motel management firm in Cincinnati. The pilot has been identified tentatively as David Wiedner, formerly of Newark and now a pilot for the Cincinnati firm.

None of the other passengers have been identified.

The plane left Lunken Airport in Cincinnati at 8:51 a.m., but airport authorities did not know all the persons aboard.

The bodies were scattered over an area of about 100 square yards, and pieces of wreckage were found at least 200 yards from the spot where the plane crashed.

Deputy sheriffs said the site of the crash was west of Pike-ton and south of Waverly, near the Scioto County line. They put the time of the crash as 9:20 a.m.

Arvin Messberger, who lives nearby in the heavily wooded, sparsely settled area of the hill county, said he did not see the crash but heard it. He notified the sheriff's office.

First reports of the crash were that the plane had exploded in the air. Parts of the wreckage were still burning more than an hour after the crash.

The Ohio Highway Patrol and sheriff's deputies were on the scene and investigating pending arrival of Civil Aeronautics authorities.

Court Refuses Legion Exemption

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Supreme Court, in a 4-3 decision, today refused a property tax exemption for state American Legion headquarters in Columbus.

The Legion had appealed lower court opinions on the grounds the veterans' organization was organized exclusively for charitable purposes and should be exempt from taxation.

The high court said although the Legion engages in work classified as charitable its main purpose is fraternal.

More Funds For School Lunches Set

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration plans to put an extra $100 million into school lunch programs. The intention, officials say, is a free or modestly priced meal for every needy youngster by the end of this school year.

A chief concern of many delegates to the recent White House hunger conference was free lunch and breakfast school programs. To dramatize their concern more than 500 delegates turned in their $18 a day conference meal tickets.

The Agriculture Department figures there are 6.6 million needy youngsters when it comes to school meals. To enroll all of these in the school lunch program is now the department goal, says school lunch director Herbert D. Rorex. Last year 3.1 million took part.

Of the total of needy children some 80 per cent are expected to get a lunch, and in a few cases, a breakfast too, free. The rest will get meals costing more than 20 cents at 15 cents off. Meals costing 25 cents or less would be available at a dime less.

There are problem areas.

Rorex said of the 6.6 million needy youngsters about 1.6 million attend schools where kitchens are inadequate or do not exist.

Efforts are being made to bring these schools into the fold, he said, and one plan is letting contracts to caterers to provide lunches. Another approach is federal grants for facilities at inner city schools.

2 More Ohioans Die In Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP)—Army Pfc. David A. McIntyre of Newark, Ohio, has been killed in action in Vietnam, the Defense Department reported Tuesday.

He was the husband of Sandra K. McIntyre of Rt. 2, Newark.

Another Ohioan, Sgt. Kenneth L. Marshand, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Marshand, 6093 Wright St., Kingsville, Ashtabula County, was listed as having died of a cause other than hostile action.

Army Judge Wants Probe Of News Media

FORT BENNING, GA. (AP) — The military judge who will preside at the murder trial of 1st Lt. William L. Calley Jr. has asked for the investigation of two former GIs and five news organizations in connection with published discussions of the alleged May Lai massacre.

Lt. Col. Reid W. Kennedy directed Tuesday that the Justice Department be asked to investigate possible violations of his ban against discussion of the Calley case by potential witnesses and be asked to prosecute where warranted.

Kennedy cited four cases involving Herbert L. Carter and Ronald L. Haeberle, both former soldiers, and the National Broadcasting Co., Life magazine, Time magazine, the Houston Chronicle and The Associated Press.

The judge's order to prosecutors in the case came during a pretrial hearing at which defense counsel asked that charges against Calley be dropped.

They contended that the Army acted too late in bringing the 26-year-old officer to trial because he was due for discharge last Sept. 6.

Calley is charged with the premeditated murder of 109 Vietnamese civilians at My Lai in March 1968 and one civilian six months earlier.

Kennedy withheld a decision on the motion to dismiss. He said he will hear arguments on all motions at a Jan. 20 hearing. No date has been set for the Calley court-martial.

Kennedy ordered Nov. 25 that potential witnesses in the trial refrain from giving interviews to news media. He directed trial counsel to transmit his order to the witnesses.

At Tuesday's hearing, Kennedy cited an interview with Carter published in the Houston Chronicle Dec. 10 and picked up by The Associated Press the same day. The story gave Carter's version of the action at My Lai.

Kennedy directed that a clipping of the Chronicle story and a notice of his order to Carter

Tax Reform Differences Ironed Out

Speedy Action May Bring Thursday Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate conferees have settled about half their differences written into separate tax reform versions, but still face such sticky issues as the oil depletion allowance and increasing the personal income tax exemption.

These indications came on the third day of the conference to resolve about 400 variations between the tax measures passed by the two chambers.

Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., conference chairman, told newsmen the work is running ahead of schedule. He said the negotiators may have all their decisions made as early as Thursday night.

This could permit a final vote in the House by Saturday. But Monday appeared a more likely date. In either case, prompt Senate action was expected, releasing the legislators to go home for Christmas.

Tuesday's conference session stretched over 11 hours, with breaks for lunch and House and Senate roll calls. Members observed a secrecy agreement on decisions.

Most of the agreements reached so far apparently are on minor and technical matters, although Mills insisted "we have handled some of the tough ones."

One of these apparently was the limit on farm deductions by persons not primarily engaged in farming. Both versions of the bill as passed would apply only to relatively large amounts of farm income, but the method of limiting deductions against other income differs in the two.

Metzenbaum Runs For U.S. Senate

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Cleveland Attorney Howard M. Metzenbaum announced today as a candidate for the Democratic nomination to the U.S. Senate.

He will challenge former astronaut John H. Glenn for the party nomination and a try at succeeding 80-year-old Sen. Stephen Young, who is retiring because of age.

Metzenbaum, 52, pledged a campaign of "promise, not promises."

The former four-term state legislator told a news conference he was motivated to enter the race "by a strong conviction that we do need new priorities in the United States."

"Behind the cloak of rhetoric which defends our present priorities, especially in the military and space program," he said, "I find very little reasoning and a lot of waste."

"We will get down to the hard facts of life," Metzenbaum said. "This will not be a campaign of promises. This will be a campaign of promise."

Metzenbaum managed successful campaigns for Sen. Young in 1958 and 1964.

AWAITING RESCUE — Mark Richardson, 17, New Haven, Conn., suffered a broken leg and lacerations when his car struck a tree and went down an embankment. He was wedged between a tree and his car for more than an hour.

U.N. Session Ends Today; Small Nations 'In Revolt'

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. General Assembly session winding up today produced a small-nation revolt against the United States and the Soviet Union but little else.

The small nations sponsored resolutions on disarmament and exploration of the ocean floor which they rammed through the assembly despite objections from the two superpowers.

On disarmament, the 12 non-aligned members of the Geneva Disarmament Committee succeeded in passing two resolutions.

One called on the United States and the Soviet Union to declare a moratorium on testing and deploying new nuclear weapons as a sign of good faith while they negotiate to limit their nuclear stockpiles.

The other resolution contended that the use of tear gas and defoliants in war violates the principles of the Geneva Convention of 1925. This was a response to the White House announcement that those chemical weapons were not covered by President Nixon's ban on the use by American forces of incapacitating chemicals.

The smaller nations also beat down U.S. and Soviet objections on the seabed question, winning approval of a demand for an immediate end to any further exploitation of the ocean bottom until a regulatory "international regime" is established.

U.S. Ambassador Christopher Phillips said later that "we certainly don't feel bound by the seabed resolution." The United States and the Soviet Union contended further studies were needed before a concrete pronouncement could be made.

At the start of the assembly session, the stalled Paris peace talks appeared to have a restraining effect on the general policy debate since most delegates were anxious to say nothing that might imperil these negotiations.

Discussion also was restricted by the prospect of the 25th anniversary session next year to be climaxed by a summit meeting of the world's top leaders. Britain's chief delegate, Lord Caradon, in a review of the session, noted that many items had been put off until 1970.

While representatives of the Big Four made futile attempts to reach a formula for peace in the Middle East, the assembly blamed Israel for the plight of refugees in Israeli-occupied Arab territory and triggered a blast from Jerusalem. An Israeli spokesman said his government would ignore this "one-sided propaganda resolution."

The session was marked by a rare show of harmony between the United States and the Soviet Union, except for a few minor clashes.

Wounded Viet Vet New Citizen

PHOENIXVILLE, Pa. (AP) — A young Italian who lost both legs serving in the U.S. Army in Vietnam stood proudly on his new artificial legs for the first time Tuesday and became a naturalized American citizen.

Chester County Judge John M. Kurtz Jr. brought his court to Valley Forge General Hospital for the ceremony.

Perspiration ran freely down the face of the soldier, 23-year-old Alfio Leone, and the judge interrupted the proceedings to offer him a chair.

"I will stand," replied Leone, whose family lives in Eggersville, N.Y.

Leone smiled broadly as some 70 fellow patients and hospital staff members broke into applause after the ceremony.

"It's like a good Christmas present," he said.

Leone, who was born in Dellecamere, Italy, had filed for citizenship three times since enlisting in the Army May 13, 1968.

He missed his first hearing in Buffalo because he volunteered for Vietnam duty.

On Oct. 28, two days after receiving notice of his second hearing, he stepped on a booby trap in Vietnam. Both legs had to be amputated above the knee. Leone leaves today to go home for Christmas.

LONDON (AP) — Airline pilots from around the world met behind closed doors in London today to discuss ways of overcoming the hijack menace. No statement on the discussion was expected before the meeting ends Thursday.

Could Hurt U.S. Program Of Cutbacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Desertions from the South Vietnamese armed forces increased this fall despite efforts to solve what officials say is the second most serious problem in Vietnamizing.

The rise was relatively slight — some nine desertions per 1,000 men in September to 10 per thousand in October—but officials are concerned because the rate is not dropping.

With more than one million men enrolled in the South Vietnamese forces, the rate of 10 desertions per one thousand men adds up to a loss of 10,000 men a month.

Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird recently told Congress desertion ranks second only to development of Vietnamese military leadership as major problems in "Vietnamizing" the war.

"With the exception of those two problems the forces are well ahead of schedule in training, in their combat responsibility, and in taking over this responsibility," Laird said.

U.S. officials took some comfort in the fact the desertion rate this fall is still below last year's high of 14 desertions per one thousand men in October 1968.

They said the main problem lies in the regular South Vietnamese army. The record of the elite units such as the Vietnamese marines, airborne and air force is said to be extremely good.

Also, desertions are reported low in militia forces, apparently because these men serve close to their homes.

As far back as 1965, the U.S. command in the war zone was working with Saigon's military leadership on various approaches to improving the lot of the Vietnamese soldiers and their families as a way of curbing a chronic desertion problem.

Apparently, these programs either fell short in concept or execution, probably the latter.

Laird described the desertion problem to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee this way:

"It is attributed largely to the fact that many of these soldiers in the South Vietnamese forces did not have adequate contact with their family. Most of these desertions, when we traced them out and checked them out, are the South Vietnamese returning to their families."

"There is no way right now for them to deliver money to their families . . . Many times, after they have been gone, after four or five months, they begin to worry how the family is getting along . . . so they just pick up and leave. Many of them might show up later in the regional forces or the popular forces . . .

"We are trying to set up places where families can stay together. . . .

"We are also encouraging them to go forward with a means of seeing that the families can receive some allowances so that the men who are in the service do not have that particular concern."

Ferguson Act Replacement Eyed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Members of the House Commerce and Labor Committee agreed Tuesday that legislation is needed to permit collective bargaining by public employees.

But that was where agreement ended. And nobody suggested an ideal compromise.

Firemen Talk Wage Hike To Council

Mike Brown, a member of the Circleville Fire Department, asked city council why a wage increase for firemen was not included in the 1970 budget.

Brown said that Mayor Richard Gerhardt had indicated firemen would receive a five per cent increase this year. The firemen also said that council members had indicated early this year funds for an increase would be available because of the one-half of one per cent income tax.

David Goldschmidt, chairman of council's finance committee, explained the mayor's proposed budget overspent estimated income by some $50,000 and it was necessary to make some cuts.

Goldschmidt also stated that because of the 40 hour work week given members of the police department by voters of Circleville, it was necessary to appropriate an additional $24,000 for salaries for additional policemen.

THE finance committee chairman told Brown that in lieu of a raise for city employees, council was working out a paid insurance program. But he explained the fate of the paid insurance would depend to a large measure upon income for the year.

The 1970 budget appropriated all but $3,000 of the estimated income.

Goldschmidt told Brown that if the fire department could show the finance committee that funds were available for the raise, one would be considered.

The spokesman retorted that finding the money was not his worry. He said the money was there if council wanted to appropriate it. A delegation of firemen attended the meeting.

In other non-legislative discussion with the gallery at the council meeting, Councilmen John Jenkins told John George, of South Scioto St., that a resolution seeking to force railroads to cover coal cars, cease blowing train whistles at night and to slow down, would be illegal if approved.

The resolution was referred back to safety committee for further study.

U.N. Session Ends Today; Small Nations 'In Revolt'

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. General Assembly session winding up today produced a small-nation revolt against the United States and the Soviet Union but little else.

The small nations sponsored resolutions on disarmament and exploration of the ocean floor which they rammed through the assembly despite objections from the two superpowers.

On disarmament, the 12 non-aligned members of the Geneva Disarmament Committee succeeded in passing two resolutions.

One called on the United States and the Soviet Union to declare a moratorium on testing and deploying new nuclear weapons as a sign of good faith while they negotiate to limit their nuclear stockpiles.

The other resolution contended that the use of tear gas and defoliants in war violates the principles of the Geneva Convention of 1925. This was a response to the White House announcement that those chemical weapons were not covered by President Nixon's ban on the use by American forces of incapacitating chemicals.

The smaller nations also beat down U.S. and Soviet objections on the seabed question, winning approval of a demand for an immediate end to any further exploitation of the ocean bottom until a regulatory "international regime" is established.

U.S. Ambassador Christopher Phillips said later that "we certainly don't feel bound by the seabed resolution." The United States and the Soviet Union contended further studies were needed before a concrete pronouncement could be made.

At the start of the assembly session, the stalled Paris peace talks appeared to have a restraining effect on the general policy debate since most delegates were anxious to say nothing that might imperil these negotiations.

Discussion also was restricted by the prospect of the 25th anniversary session next year to be climaxed by a summit meeting of the world's top leaders. Britain's chief delegate, Lord Caradon, in a review of the session, noted that many items had been put off until 1970.

While representatives of the Big Four made futile attempts to reach a formula for peace in the Middle East, the assembly blamed Israel for the plight of refugees in Israeli-occupied Arab territory and triggered a blast from Jerusalem. An Israeli spokesman said his government would ignore this "one-sided propaganda resolution."

The session was marked by a rare show of harmony between the United States and the Soviet Union, except for a few minor clashes.

Wounded Viet Vet New Citizen

PHOENIXVILLE, Pa. (AP) — A young Italian who lost both legs serving in the U.S. Army in Vietnam stood proudly on his new artificial legs for the first time Tuesday and became a naturalized American citizen.

Chester County Judge John M. Kurtz Jr. brought his court to Valley Forge General Hospital for the ceremony.

Perspiration ran freely down the face of the soldier, 23-year-old Alfio Leone, and the judge interrupted the proceedings to offer him a chair.

"I will stand," replied Leone, whose family lives in Eggertsville, N.Y.

Leone smiled broadly as some 70 fellow patients and hospital staff members broke into applause after the ceremony.

"It's like a good Christmas present," he said. Leone, who was born in Dellecamere, Italy, had filed for citizenship three times since enlisting in the Army May 13, 1968.

He missed his first hearing in Buffalo because he volunteered for Vietnam duty.

On Oct. 28, two days after receiving notice of his second hearing, he stepped on a booby trap in Vietnam. Both legs had to be amputated above the knee. Leone leaves today to go home for Christmas.

Could Hurt U.S. Program Of Cutbacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Desertions from the South Vietnamese armed forces increased this fall despite efforts to solve what officials say is the second most serious problem in Vietnamizing.

The rise was relatively slight — some nine desertions per 1,000 men in September to 10 per thousand in October — but officials are concerned because the rate is not dropping.

With more than one million men enrolled in the South Vietnamese forces, the rate of 10 desertions per one thousand men adds up to a loss of 10,000 men a month.

Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird recently told Congress desertion ranks second only to development of Vietnamese military leadership as major problems in "Vietnamizing" the war.

"With the exception of those two problems the forces are well ahead of schedule in training, in their combat responsibility, and in taking over this responsibility," Laird said.

U.S. officials took some comfort in the fact the desertion rate this fall is still below last year's high of 14 desertions per one thousand men in October 1968.

They said the main problem lies in the regular South Vietnamese army. The record of the elite units such as the Vietnamese marines, airborne and air force is said to be extremely good.

Also, desertions are reported low in militia forces, apparently because these men serve close to their homes.

As far back as 1965, the U.S. command in the war zone was working with Saigon's military leadership on various approaches to improving the lot of the Vietnamese soldiers and their families as a way of curbing a chronic desertion problem.

Apparently, these programs either fell short in concept or execution, probably the latter.

Laird described the desertion problem to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee this way:

"It is attributed largely to the fact that many of these soldiers in the South Vietnamese forces did not have adequate contact with their family. Most of these desertions, when we traced them out and checked them out, are the South Vietnamese returning to their families."

"There is no way right now for them to deliver money to their families . . . Many times, after they have been gone, after four or five months, they begin to worry how the family is getting along . . . so they just pick up and leave. Many of them might show up later in the regional forces or the popular forces . . ."

"We are trying to set up places where families can stay together. . . . We are also encouraging them to go forward with a means of seeing that the families can receive some allowances so that the men who are in the service do not have that particular concern."

Ferguson Act Replacement Eyed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Members of the House Commerce and Labor Committee agreed Tuesday that legislation is needed to permit collective bargaining by public employees.

But that was where agreement ended. And nobody suggested an ideal compromise.

Army Judge Wants Probe Of News Media

FORT BENNING, GA. (AP) — The military judge who will preside at the murder trial of 1st Lt. William L. Calley Jr. has asked for the investigation of two former GIs and five news organizations in connection with published discussions of the alleged My Lai massacre.

Lt. Col. Reid W. Kennedy directed Tuesday that the Justice Department be asked to investigate possible violations of his ban against discussion of the Calley case by potential witnesses and be asked to prosecute where warranted.

Kennedy cited four cases involving Herbert L. Carter and Ronald L. Haefele, both former soldiers, and the National Broadcasting Co., Life magazine, Time magazine, the Houston Chronicle and The Associated Press.

The judge's order to prosecute in the case came during a pretrial hearing at which defense counsel asked that charges against Calley be dropped.

They contended that the Army

acted too late in bringing the 26-year-old officer to trial because he was due for discharge last Sept. 6.

Calley is charged with the premeditated murder of 109 Vietnamese civilians at My Lai in March 1968 and one civilian six months earlier.

Kennedy withheld a decision on the motion to dismiss. He said he will hear arguments on all motions at a Jan. 20 hearing. No date has been set for the Calley court-martial.

Kennedy ordered Nov. 25 that potential witnesses in the trial refrain from giving interviews to news media. He directed trial counsel to transmit his order to the witnesses.

At Tuesday's hearing, Kennedy cited an interview with Carter published in the Houston Chronicle Dec. 10 and picked up by The Associated Press the same day. The story gave Carter's version of the action at My Lai.

Kennedy directed that a clipping of the Chronicle story and a notice of his order to Carter be forwarded to U.S. Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell with a request "to investigate and, if warranted, to prosecute the Houston Chronicle" and that the same request be made "with respect to The Associated Press."

The other instances cited by the judge were:

—One in which Kennedy quoted Cpl. Anthony Broussard as saying he was contacted by Life magazine and Time magazine, and that a representative of Time offered $7,000 and a sports

Democratic Primary for the Fourth ward seat.
Prior to his term on council, Barr was for 25 years a member of the city fire department. During that time there were few council meetings he did not attend.

BARR also complimented his fellow councilmen. He noted that he regretted the city had been unable to acquire the easements to complete the widening and improvement of Atwater Ave. north of Cedar Heights Road.

He also said he was sorry that council had not forced the mayor to appoint a service director. Barr noted the post had been vacant since the resignation of Earl Radcliff.

The outgoing councilman indicated he doubted the authority of the mayor to enter into contracts without a service director.

He also expressed the opinion that the city solicitor should attend all council meetings for moral support.

Barr will be replaced by Frank Barnhill as councilman at large and Jenkins as Cook.
Council President Joseph Bell and the other members of the city's legislative force complimented the two outgoing members and urged them to seek office again in the future.

Foreign Aid Bill Snags In Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two unbudgeted military assistance items, $54.5 million to buy planes for Formosa and $50 million for South Korea, hold the key for final congressional action on financing the foreign aid program.

The items are involved in two separate measures—the authorization bill setting the ceiling on the program and the appropriations bill providing the actual funds—which have to be passed before Congress shuts down for the year.

Both bills advanced Tuesday, but potential collisions loomed between the Senate and House.

Here is the situation:

—Authorization: Senate-House
conferees agreed on the economic aid portion of the bill, hoping to decide today on military aid.

The House had approved the Formosa and Korea items, but the Senate turned them down.

—Appropriations: The Senate Appropriations Committee approved the foreign aid money bill for floor action later in the week. It retained the Korea aid item voted by the House but deleted the plans for Formosa.

If the authorization bill that emerges from the conference deletes either of the two controversial items, and both houses go along, they could be killed for the year since unauthorized funds can't be spent.

Little Girl Returned Home; Kidnaped In Large Store

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Smiling, bouncy little red-haired Kristie Lyn Slater, 5, is back home in Chattanooga after being found in an Atlanta department store two days after she disappeared here.

The little girl disappeared from the toy department of a Chattanooga store Saturday night while she and her mother were shopping.

Patrolman R. E. Jackson of the Atlanta crime prevention bureau said Kristie told him a man in a car "bigger than my daddy's" brought her the 120 miles to Atlanta.

Neither the police nor the FBI gave any information on where Kristie had been in the intervening 48 hours.

But a relieved father, Randall Slater, said, "Now I can sleep tonight" as he carried the little girl from the car in Chattanooga.

Hundreds of police, rescue squad members and volunteers had searched the area around the Chattanooga shopping center Sunday and Monday for any trace of the tot and a helicopter was brought into action Monday in a 2 1/2-hour survey of the residential section.

Officers said a woman told them she saw a blond-haired man carrying a little girl through the parking lot Saturday night and the girl was saying, "Let me go; I want my mother."

Atlanta officers also said a man and Kristie were believed seen in Atlanta earlier Monday.

Kristie was the third young Tennessee girl to disappear in recent weeks. The others, Kathy Jones, 12, of Nashville and Glenda Smith, 13, of Knoxville, were both found murdered.

Paper Mill, Trash Fires Extinguished

A fire caused by an overheated dryer at Container Corporation, 401 W. Mill St., was reported to the local fire department at 7:18 p.m.
Tuesday. The dryer ignited some paper nearby. There was no loss.

Later that evening at 8:06 p.m., firemen were called to the rear of 928 S. Court St., the residence of James Lemaster, to extinguish a trash fire.

Area Schools Get $48,668 From State

School districts in Pickaway have recently received a Christmas bonus totalling $48,668 in funds for education.

Teays Valley topped local districts with $27,759 received from the distribution of monies from the original sale of land set aside for schools when Ohio was first formed in 1803.

Logan Elm was presented
$12,655 and Circleville $6,254.
Westfall received the minimum of $2,000 set by the state legislature when it approved the program in November, as the district was included in the Virginia Military District and not covered by the Congressional Lands Act, which jurisdiction stopped at the Scioto River.

Schools have been receiving payments of interest annually on these funds, amounting to several hundred dollars.
Amounts received by the districts at this time are the original sales prices of the land parcels, eliminating the yearly income. This money is not earmarked for any specific purpose, but may be used for any educational project.

Five Registrants Answer December Draft Call

Five of Pickaway County registrants reported for duty with the Armed Forces in December through Selective Service, the last to leave the county under the old draft system.

Beginning in Jan., 1970, the new random number sequence will be used to determine inductions in the draft call.

Two of the December inductees were volunteers. David L. Sadler, 469 E. Franklin St., was inducted as a volunteer into the Army; Wayne W. Glover, 703 N. Pickaway St., volunteered service with the Marines.

Other registrants inducted for duty with the Army were David L. Cupp, 120 Highland Ave.;
Michael McFadden, Route 1,
Laurelville; and Jerald E.
Giffin, 143 Highland Ave.

The inductees were served coffee and doughnuts, donated by Lindsey's Bakery, prior to their departure from Circleville by Red Cross Volunteers.

Each man was also presented with a packet of useful articles including writing materials, a gift from Red Cross and Sertona Club.

Agnew Program Draws Letters

NEW YORK (AP) — The Columbia Broadcasting System says a network program devoted to discussion of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's criticism of television drew more than 5,000 letters, a majority approving CBS' handling of the issue.

CBS added however that the over-all mail ran 4 to 5-1 in Agnew's favor in the 37,427 letters received at the network headquarters here since the vice president's Nov. 13 speech in Des Moines.

CBS newsmen Mike Wallace, reporting the figures on the "60 Minutes" program Tuesday night, said the 37,427 total included 5,152 letters that responded to the Nov. 25 edition of the same program.

NEW YORK (AP) — The cigar people think they're on to something in teaching women to smoke. Already there are an estimated 100,000 women cigar smokers in America, and that leaves millions more to cultivate as customers.

Don't for a minute underestimate the seriousness of their intentions. With cigarettes under attack as hazards to health, the cigar people feel that their chances of luring women to the bigger weed are greatly improved.

They have redesigned their product to make it slimmer, more graceful in appearance and less obtrusive. They have mentholated it, flavored it with Burgundy, rum, cherry and other fruits and have put plastic tips on the end.

In order to better promote the product, they have named a former beauty queen, Judy Lynn Prince, as assistant director of the Cigar Institute of America, a job that requires her to tour the country, talking and puffing. And just so the ladies won't ruin the act before it really catches on, the institute officials have issued rules of etiquette for female smokers.

Among the bits of advice: —Remove the cigar from the mouth between puffs. —Never permit the cigar to dangle from your lips.

—Wait until everyone is finished eating before lighting up. —Remove the discarded stub from the ashtray promptly.

—Never smoke a cigar on the streets.

A few women have always dared to be seen smoking publicly. George Sand, the French romantic novelist of the 1800s, and Amy Lowell, the American poet who died in 1925, were among them. But they were known to break other conventions as well.

Greta Garbo, Mrs. Abe Fortas, Elizabeth Taylor, Lauren Bacall and Marlene Dietrich are identified now as inclined to take a puff. And, it is claimed, some men will give their wives cigars for this Christmas.

This receptiveness of women to cigars is not fully understood, but perhaps it is part of the new freedom for women. Cigar smokers, some behavioral psychologists claim, are inclined to be achievers.

If cigar smoking is suggestive of aggressive, achieving, dominating personalities, therefore, the men should take a hint from the way in which women have taken to the pastime.

Otherwise it might not be long before he is denigrated by some poetess who, in mimicry of Rudyard Kipling, will write:

"A man is only a man, but a good cigar is a smoke."

I have always read about but I have never been able to find an exact version of the Hippocratic Oath. Can you direct us to one?

Mr. and Mrs. L.C.Y., Texas
Dear Mr. and Mrs. Y.: I am delighted to reprint in its entirety the original Oath of Hippocrates. It gives me an additional sense of pleasure to re-read it and acknowledge the breadth and wisdom it includes.

Hippocrates was a Greek physician who was born about 460 B.C. To him, as the father of medicine, is ascribed many clinical bedside observations of disease. He established, too, the earliest scientific basis for medical study.

"I swear by Apollo and Physician and Asclepius and Hygieia and Panacea and all the gods and goddesses, making them my witness, that I will fulfill according to my ability and judgment this oath and this covenant:

"To hold him who has taught me this art as equal to my parents and to live my life in partnership with him and if he is in need of money to give him a share of mine and to regard his offspring as equal to my brothers in male lineage and to teach them this art — if they desire to learn it — without fee and covenant: to give a share of precepts and oral instruction and all the other learning to my sons and to the sons of him who has instructed me and to pupils who have signed the covenant and have taken an oath according to the medical law, but to no one else.

"I will apply dietetic measures for the benefit of the sick according to my ability and judgment; I will keep them from harm and injustice.

"I will neither give a deadly drug to anybody if asked for it, nor will I make a suggestion to this effect. Similarly I will not give to a woman an abortive remedy. In purity and holiness I will guard my life and my art.

"I will not use the knife, not even on sufferers from stone, but will withdraw in favor of such men as are engaged in this work.

"Whatever houses I may visit, I will come for the benefit of the sick, remaining free of all intentional injustice, of all mischief and in particular of sexual relations with both female and male persons, be they free or slaves.

"What I may see or hear in the course of treatment or even outside of the treatment in regard to the life of men, which on no account one must spread abroad, I will keep secret and will not reveal."

The film companies are now going through the agonies of canceling big budget projects, cutting studio costs to a minimum and trying to find inexpensive films that will appeal to the young generation.

Who Needs The Help?

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

At times, when the Swedes and the British are raking the U.S. over the coals for its alleged warmongering, one is tempted to say, "Okay, boys, if we're that bad and you don't want us to help Asia and Europe keep the Muscovite wolf at bay, there's nothing to stop us from falling back on a policy of Western Hemisphere defense." The point is that we could do it. We need the support of the outer world far less than the Swedes and the British need it.

The oil discoveries on the Alaskan North Slope, to pick a recent headline example, promise to make the North American continent completely self-sufficient so far as fossil fuels are concerned. Anthony Harrigan, an associate of the Georgetown University Center of Strategic and International Studies, thinks the recent seventy-one-day voyage of the giant icebreaker-tanker SS Manhattan through the ice floes of the Northwest Passage from Halifax to Alaska and back again over the roof of the world is an epoch-making bit of pioneering. But, according to Roger Lewis of the General Dynamics Corporation, the Arctic tankers of the future may not have to rely on costly icebreaking. Mr. Lewis envisages the building of a submarine tanker fleet which will be able to make the round trip from Atlantic Coast ports to Brudhoe Bay in Alaska and back again under the ice floes without ever coming to the surface.

Once you go deep under the surface of the water you enter a world that is without commotion. No hurricanes blow below the waves. Assuming you have adequate fuel (as is the case with the atomic submarine) and plenty of oxygen, you can stay down in an unbreached element without worry. Nuclear submarines have actually gone under the polar ice cap and emerged with little difficulty.

Presumably, Mr. Harrigan, in making the case for "a fleet of thirty or more icebreaking supertankers" capable of crunching their way through ice that "is sometimes fifty-feet thick," is talking of the Nineteen Seventies. Mr. Lewis's projected giant submarine tankers could be something for the Nineteen Eighties. But whether the Alaskan oil is moved over the waters or under the waters, or whether it is moved by pipeline across the tundra to the markets of the south, our access to the oil reserves of Saudi Arabia and Libya (or even, for that matter, Latin America) will cease to be a critical matter. It would, of course, be extremely short-sighted of us to consign the whole outer world to the Communists. We can't be that cold-blooded about those who have been our Allies. But if we were compelled to accept isolationism, it would hurt us far less than it would hurt the Swedes, the British the French and all the others who are so lavish with their nit-picking about U.S. "imperialism" in southeast Asia. In all decency the nit-pickers should reflect on what might happen to them if we were actually to take their gratuitous advice and stop trying to contain the Communists.

To protect a deepwater tanker fleet operating through North-west Passage waters, Mr. Harrigan thinks we must reconsider our defense posture. The Soviet Union, which has developed its own specially constructed ships and ice breakers to serve as an Arctic Ocean alternative to the Trans-Siberian Railway, has pioneered in naval protection of northern waters. The Russians, says Mr. Harrigan, "can be expected to direct their nuclear submarines north and under the ice." The Soviet Union, according to our CIA, has 425 submarines, thirty-five of which are nuclear. The U.S., so Mr. Harrigan thinks, may very well have to deploy a strong undersea flotilla of its own in the Far North and it will have to create a new northern naval command "geared to the operational problems of the region." But if Mr. Lewis is right about the long future, and the day of the submarine tanker is coming, we will some day have an underwater tanker fleet which cannot be tracked by radar or by sight. This would take some of the expense out of the job of protecting the hemispheric movement of oil in northern waters.

The movement of populations into the Far North, which will come as the oil economy of Alaska develops, will inevitably spark a search for iron and copper, zinc and tungsten, and even new sources of gold. For if the docks and the shipping and the naval protection are there for oil, it will become an economic proposition to transport any type of wealth that may be found in the Far North. It has already been sufficiently proved that people can live in the Arctic; the Soviet Far North, as Mr. Harrigan points out, now supports ten times the population of the U.S. and Canadian northern areas. Since we do not need Asia, Africa or even Latin America for expansion, an isolationist policy is feasible for the U.S. if we are pushed and chivied into it. Stockholm, London and Paris papers please copy.

According to Boyle

By D. M. KREISHER

(For Hal Boyle)

NEW YORK (AP) — People in big cities are reputed to be cold and unfriendly to strangers, but newcomers to New York gain instant membership in a club that entitles them to endless sympathy and advice.

The group is the "Hunting for a Home Club," a fellowship of blood, sweat and tears shared by nearly everyone of moderate or lower income who has tried to find a place to live in this city where living space is one of the rarest commodities.

The newcomer is welcomed into the club by his new fellow workers, by deskmen and bell-boys at the hotel he uses as a base while hunting and by others who learn of his status.

"Found a place to live yet?" has almost replaced "Glad to meet you" as a greeting for new coworkers.

The depth of emotion expressed by the wellwisher is a good indication of the time lapse since he went through the same trauma.

"Just moved into the city?" a waitress asks a customer reading the real estate ads over his breakfast coffee. "Still looking for a place to live? Miserable isn't it?"

Such expressions of concern can go a long way toward subduing the waves of frustration and hopelessness that engulf the home hunter after a few days of futile search.

Of more questionable value is the abundance of advice veterans of the home-hunting campaign give to the greenhorn. The ideas are valid in most cases, but, unfortunately, also are known by most of the other contestants in the frantic game.

The most common technique is to search the real estate section of the newspapers, particularly the massive section in the Sunday New York Times. Old pros will tell you the section can be obtained in certain locations as early as Thursday and is readily available on Saturday.

The sight of this seemingly endless selection is at first reassuring. But, after combing the columns for ads that match his aims in size, costs and locations, the seeker takes the greatly reduced list and a handful of dimes to the nearest telephone. There he probably will find most of the openings were taken days ago.

Those romantic or artistic souls who seek a place in Greenwich Village are directed to the ads in the weekly Village Voice. The eager apartment hunter then joins the early Thursday morning queue at the stand where the Voice first is distributed.

Unless he came with the street sweepers he'll find himself well back in a line of hunters who pay their money and wait to grab the copies as they come off the truck and race to the nearest phone booth. Chances are, when the seeker finally gets through to the apartment manager, after numerous busy signals, the apartment he wanted already is taken.

After days or weeks, depending on his patience, the home seeker either revises his rent limit upward, his desires in a home downward, or settles for an area of the city a little less desirable.

Or he could give in and resort to a broker—easier on the nerves and more reliable probably but it means a loss of face among those who "did it on my own." It also costs more money.

A month's rent used to be the standard fee, but it's going up. "Ten per cent of a year's rent is the legal limit, but I know some brokers are charging 15," said one broker who only asked 10 per cent.

By one means or another, the newcomer eventually finds a place and settles in, scarred but wiser, and waits to greet the next greenhorn with, "Found a place to live yet?"

Anthony Harrigan, an associate of the Georgetown University Center of Strategic and International Studies, thinks the recent seventy-one-day voyage of the giant icebreaker-tanker SS Manhattan through the ice floes of the Northwest Passage from Halifax to Alaska and back again over the roof of the world is an epoch-making bit of pioneering. But, according to Roger Lewis of the General Dynamics Corporation, the Arctic tankers of the future may not have to rely on costly icebreaking. Mr. Lewis envisages the building of a submarine tanker fleet which will be able to make the round trip from Atlantic Coast ports to Brudhoe Bay in Alaska and back again under the ice floes without ever coming to the surface.

Once you go deep under the surface of the water you enter a world that is without commotion. No hurricanes blow below the waves. Assuming you have adequate fuel (as is the case with the atomic submarine) and plenty of oxygen, you can stay down in an unexposed element without worry. Nuclear submarines have actually gone under the polar ice cap and emerged with little difficulty.

Presumably, Mr. Harrigan, in making the case for "a fleet of thirty or more icebreaking supertankers" capable of crunching their way through ice that "is sometimes fifty-feet thick," is talking of the Nineteen Seventies. Mr. Lewis's projected giant submarine tankers could be something for the Nineteen Eighties. But whether the Alaskan oil is moved over the waters or under the waters, or whether it is moved by pipeline across the tundra to the markets of the south, our access to the oil reserves of Saudi Arabia and Libya (or even, for that matter, Latin America) will cease to be a critical matter. It would, of course, be extremely short-sighted of us to consign the whole outer world to the Communists. We can't be that cold-blooded about those who have been our Allies. But if we were compelled to accept isolationism, it would hurt us far less than it would hurt the Swedes, the British the French and all the others who are so lavish with their nit-picking about U.S. "imperialism" in southeast Asia. In all decency the nit-pickers should reflect on what might happen to them if we were actually to take their gratuitous advice and stop trying to contain the Communists.

To protect a deepwater tanker fleet operating through Northwest Passage waters, Mr. Harrigan thinks we must reconsider our defense posture. The Soviet Union, which has developed its own specially constructed ships and ice breakers to serve as an Arctic Ocean alternative to the Trans-Siberian Railway, has pioneered in naval protection of northern waters. The Russians, says Mr. Harrigan, "can be expected to direct their nuclear submarines north and under the ice." The Soviet Union, according to our CIA, has 425 submarines, thirty-five of which are nuclear. The U.S., so Mr. Harrigan thinks, may very well have to deploy a strong undersea flotilla of its own in the Far North and it will have to create a new northern naval command "geared to the operational problems of the region." But if Mr. Lewis is right about the long future, and the day of the submarine tanker is coming, we will some day have an underwater tanker fleet which cannot be tracked by radar or by sight. This would take some of the expense out of the job of protecting the hemispheric movement of oil in northern waters.

The movement of populations into the Far North, which will come as the oil economy of Alaska develops, will inevitably spark a search for iron and copper, zinc and tungsten, and even new sources of gold. For if the docks and the shipping and the naval protection are there for oil, it will become an economic proposition to transport any type of wealth that may be found in the Far North. It has already been sufficiently proved that people can live in the Arctic; the Soviet Far North, as Mr. Harrigan points out, now supports ten times the population of the U.S. and Canadian northern areas. Since we do not need Asia, Africa or even Latin America for expansion, an isolationist policy is feasible for the U.S. if we are pushed and chivied into it. By D. M. KREISHER

(For Hal Boyle)

NEW YORK (AP) — People in big cities are reputed to be cold and unfriendly to strangers, but newcomers to New York gain instant membership in a club that entitles them to endless sympathy and advice.

The group is the "Hunting for a Home Club," a fellowship of blood, sweat and tears shared by nearly everyone of moderate or lower income who has tried to find a place to live in this city where living space is one of the rarest commodities.

The newcomer is welcomed into the club by his new fellow workers, by deskmen and bell-boys at the hotel he uses as a base while hunting and by others who learn of his status.

"Found a place to live yet?" has almost replaced "Glad to meet you" as a greeting for new coworkers.

The depth of emotion expressed by the wellwisher is a good indication of the time lapse since he went through the same trauma.

"Just moved into the city?" a waitress asks a customer reading the real estate ads over his breakfast coffee. "Still looking for a place to live? Miserable isn't it?"

Such expressions of concern can go a long way toward subduing the waves of frustration and hopelessness that engulf the home hunter after a few days of futile search.

Of more questionable value is the abundance of advice veterans of the home-hunting campaign give to the greenhorn. The ideas are valid in most cases, but, unfortunately, also are known by most of the other contestants in the frantic game.

The most common technique is to search the real estate section of the newspapers, particularly the massive section in the Sunday New York Times. Old pros will tell you the section can be obtained in certain locations as early as Thursday and is readily available on Saturday.

The sight of this seemingly endless selection is at first reassuring. But, after combing the columns for ads that match his aims in size, costs and locations, the seeker takes the greatly reduced list and a handful of dimes to the nearest telephone. There he probably will find most of the openings were taken days ago.

Those romantic or artistic souls who seek a place in Greenwich Village are directed to the ads in the weekly Village Voice. The eager apartment hunter then joins the early Thursday morning queue at the stand where the Voice first is distributed.

Unless he came with the street sweepers he'll find himself well back in a line of hunters who pay their money and wait to grab the copies as they come off the truck and race to the nearest phone booth. Chances are, when the seeker finally gets through to the apartment manager, after numerous busy signals, the apartment he wanted already is taken.

After days or weeks, depending on his patience, the home seeker either revises his rent limit upward, his desires in a home downward, or settles for an area of the city a little less desirable.

Or he could give in and resort to a broker—easier on the nerves and more reliable probably but it means a loss of face among those who "did it on my own." It also costs more money.

A month's rent used to be the standard fee, but it's going up. "Ten per cent of a year's rent is the legal limit, but I know some brokers are charging 15," said one broker who only asked 10 per cent.

By one means or another, the newcomer eventually finds a place and settles in, scarred but wiser, and waits to greet the next greenhorn with, "Found a place to live yet?"

Hollywood Woes

By BOB THOMAS

AP Television-Movie Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The 1960s brought a revolution to the American movie industry that still is going on.

As the decade ends the old structure of the film business is crumbling and new patterns are emerging. The need for change was demonstrated last month when four major film companies reported losses of $110,066,000.

Can new managements reverse the downward trend? That will be determined in the 1970s.

The story of the film industry in the 1960s is one of turmoil, doubt and mismanagement. The decade began with strikes by actors and writers, whose action expressed the concern of all Hollywood workers over the future of the business. The strikes, which were resolved by compromise, brought further distress to the faltering industry.

The big studio era was over. No longer could the companies afford vast stables of actors, directors and writers to create large programs of pictures. The major companies released 184 films in 1960, compared to 320 in 1951. And a third of the 1960 films were made abroad, while only a small percentage were filmed outside Hollywood a decade earlier.

By 1961 Hollywood labor had coined what it considered a dirty phrase: runaway production.

That was the term applied to the financing by American companies of filming abroad. The advantages were obvious: exotic locales; cheaper labor; tax advantages for nonresident stars; subsidies by European governments.

The year 1962 brought the first of the many corporate changes that were to change the structure of the industry. MCA dissolved its giant talent agency and bought Universal Studio and Decca Records. Together with its own television film enterprise, MCA created a corporation that embraced a wide area of the entertainment business.

The same year saw the return of Darryl F. Zanuck to 20th Century-Fox. During his absence as an independent film maker in Europe, the company he helped found had taken an alarming tumble. The principal reason was the fiasco of "Cleopatra," which cost an estimated $40 million and almost wrecked 20th Century-Fox.

Zanuck shut down the studio, revitalized the company and brought it back to prosperity. By mid decade Wall Street had become enamored with leisure-time investments, and giant corporations cast their eyes at the movies. In 1966 the new conglomerate, Gulf and Western, bought Paramount, and a financing corporation, Transamerica, merged with United Artists. Warner Bros. sold out to Seven Arts. Attempts to take over MGM were beaten off.

Movies were being presented in network prime time seven nights a week, and the broadcast began to worry about cutting studio costs to a minimum and trying to find inexpensive films that will appeal to the young generation.

hours of supervised drilling at the Denman machine shop before the safe could be opened.

The social event of the season, the Kiwanis Mistletoe Ball was held at Memorial Hall in spite of inclement weather which prevented the orchestra from appearing. Dress ranged from formal to sweaters, skirts, bobby socks and storm boots as guest danced to the lively tunes provided by a juke box.

A new development was the two-hour movie made especially for television. Universal pioneered this field with the World Premiere movies, which proved as popular as those which had already been released in theaters.

The film companies themselves were using television to maintain their economic stability. They sold their backlogs to the networks, and the price per film rose from $200,000 to $800,000. Most of the companies were also producing filmed series for television, and that helped absorb some of the crushing overhead at the studios.

A new development was the two-hour movie made especially for television. Universal pioneered this field with the World Premiere movies, which proved as popular as those which had already been released in theaters.

More mergers came at the end of the decade. Warner Bros. Seven Arts was taken over by Kinney National Service. Joseph Levine's Embassy was absorbed by Avco. Universal tried to merge with both Westinghouse and Firestone, but neither marriage worked.

This year the Last Vegas operator Kirk Kerkorian bought control of MGM and appointed Jim Aubrey, former CBS program chief, as president.

As the decade ended in waves of red ink, all of the film companies were struggling to adjust to the new market.

The final death knell of the big studio was sounded when Paramount announced it was moving its headquarters out of the studio. The historic Paramount lot was up for sale. At least part of the MGM studio was expected to be sold, and the departure of 20th Century-Fox (renamed 21st Century-Fox Corp.) seemed inevitable.

It appeared that most of the companies would adopt the system of United Artists which owned no studio but rented space when needed.

The major task facing the new film bosses was adjusting their production to a new film market. In explaining this year's nine-month loss of $21,978,000, Fox's Darryl Zanuck commented:

"Without in any way making excuses for the disappointing performance of some of our pictures, it should be observed that there has been a revolution in public taste that has resulted in the rapid obsolescence of films and story properties that, when originally initiated, represented sound business risks."

His statement expressed the quandary of all film bosses over how to satisfy the new film tastes. The overproduced spectacles and musicals hold little appeal to today's audience, which is preponderantly between 16 and 25. It is this "now" generation that has made enormous hits out of such modest films as "Easy Rider," "Midnight Cowboy," "Goodbye, Columbus" and "Alice's Restaurant."

Trinity Lutheran Church Wedding Ceremony Site

MR. AND MRS. PAUL RICHARD CONGROVE

Miss Barbara Ann Wardell and Mr. Paul Richard Congrove exchanged wedding vows 8:30 p.m. Nov. 14 in Trinity Lutheran Church. Pastor Carl G. Zehner performed the double ring ceremony before the altar adorned with vases of pink, red and white carnations.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Wardell, 400 Walnut Creek Pike and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dana Borror, 305 Avon Drive.

Mrs. Thomas Downing, organist, presented a half-hour program of pre-nuptial music.

Given in marriage by her father and mother, the bride was escorted to the altar by her father. Family pews were marked with white satin bows.

The bride selected for her wedding day selected for length gown of ivory crepe with scoop neckline and long full sleeves banded at the wrists. The empire waistline and split back panel were trimmed with Venice lace. The matching mantilla of silk illusion was enhanced with Venice lace. She carried a long cascade bouquet of white carnations centered with a full blooming red rose.

Miss Debbie Leasure, cousin of the groom, served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Chester Iery, sister of the bride and Miss Allegra Andrews. The attendants were dressed alike in red velvet full length gowns featuring empire waistlines. They carried cascade arrangements of red roses and pink carnations.

Jack Leasure, cousin of the groom, was ringbearer.

Performing the duties of best man for his cousin was Mr. Gary Leasure. Ushers were Mr. Greg Peck and Mr. Tim Leasure, another cousin of the groom.

A reception in the Parish House immediately followed the ceremony. Hostesses were Mrs. Jack Leasure, Mrs. Earl Leasure, Mrs. Gary Leasure and Miss Jody Leasure. The bride's table was centered with a three tiered cake decorated in pink and white and encircled with greenery. Candelabra decorated with pink and white carnations were placed at either side of the cake.

For a wedding trip in the south, the bride wore a black and orange dress with an empire waist and matching orange coat. Her corsage was of yellow and orange mums.

The couple presently resides at 123 Pontious Lane, Apt. 2.

The new Mrs. Congrove is a senior at Circleville High School and works in the law office of Mr. Richard Gerhardt.

Mr. Congrove graduated from Circleville High School and completed one year at Franklin University, Columbus. He is currently employed by DuPont Co.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs.

Crusaders Class Holds Yule Party

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Vernon George, 405 Northridge Road, was decorated in the Christmas theme for the Saturday evening meeting of Crusaders Class of the Emmanuel United Methodist Church.

Mrs. Donald Metzler, president, presided over the business session. Bill Jordan read the Nativity Story from St. Luke.

Donald Metzler, at the organ, accompanied the group for singing Christmas carols. Gifts were exchanged and contests conducted.

Refreshments of hors d'oeuvres and punch were served throughout the evening from a table covered with a white linen cloth and decorated with holly and candelabra with red tapers.

The group repeated "The Lord's Prayer" and a dessert course was served at the close of the evening.

Carolyn Boyse, Charles Davis Exchange Vows

Mrs. Carolyn Louise Boyse of Stoutsville, and Mr. Charles E. Davis of Circleville, were united in marriage Saturday, Nov. 15.

The Rev. Harry Binegar of Washington C. H., performed the ceremony in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Milton J. Adkins, Route 1, Stoutsville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles O. Davis, 319 Long St. He is currently employed by Cellar Lumber Co. in Circleville.

The couple now resides at Stoutsville.

Bride Honored With Shower

Games were played with prizes won by Mrs. Janie Davis, Mrs. Charlotte Moss, Mrs. Opal Stevenson, Mrs. Carol Brown and Mrs. Emma Adkins.

Present for the occasion were Mrs. Maple Wood, Mrs. Louise Lemaster, Mrs. Opal Stevenson and Theresa, Mrs. Charlotte Moss, Mrs. Linda Brown, Jenny and Jimmy; Mrs. Edna Davis, Mrs. Carol Brown, Mrs. Janie Davis, Mrs. Emma Adkins, mother of the honored guest.

Miss Barbara Ann Wardell and Mr. Paul Richard Congrove exchanged wedding vows 8:30 p.m. Nov. 14 in Trinity Lutheran Church. Pastor Carl G. Zehner performed the double ring ceremony before the altar adorned with vases of pink, red and white carnations.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Wardell, 400 Walnut Creek Pike and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dana Borror, 305 Avon Drive.

Mrs. Thomas Downing, organist, presented a half-hour program of pre-nuptial music. Giveaway in marriage by her father and mother, the bride was escorted to the altar by her father. Family pews were marked with white satin bows.

The bride selected for her wedding day selected for length gown of ivory crepe with scoop neckline and long full sleeves banded at the wrists. The empire waistline and split back panel were trimmed with Venice lace. The matching mantilla of silk illusion was enhanced with Venice lace. She carried a long cascade bouquet of white carnations centered with a full blooming red rose.

Miss Debbie Leasure, cousin of the groom, served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Chester Jery, sister of the bride and Miss Allegra Andrews. The attendants were dressed alike in red velvet full length gowns featuring empire waistlines. They carried cascade arrangements of red roses and pink carnations. Jack Leasure, cousin of the groom, was ringbearer.

Performing the duties of best man for his cousin was Mr. Gary Leasure. Ushers were Mr. Greg Peck and Mr. Tim Leasure, another cousin of the groom.

A reception in the Parish House immediately followed the ceremony. Hostesses were Mrs. Jack Leasure, Mrs. Earl Leasure, Mrs. Gary Leasure and Miss Jody Leasure. The bride's table was centered with a three tiered cake decorated in pink and white and encircled with greenery. Candelabra decorated with pink and white carnations were placed at either side of the cake.

For a wedding trip in the south, the bride wore a black and orange dress with an empire waist and matching orange coat. Her corsage was of yellow and orange mums. The couple presently resides at 123 Pontious Lane, Apt. 2.

The new Mrs. Congrove is a senior at Circleville High School and works in the law office of Mr. Richard Gerhardt.

Mr. Congrove graduated from Circleville High School and completed one year at Franklin University, Columbus. He is currently employed by DuPont Co.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs.

Crusaders Class Holds Yule Party

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Vernon George, 405 Northridge Road, was decorated in the Christmas theme for the Saturday evening meeting of the Crusaders Class of the Emmanuel United Methodist Church.

Mrs. Donald Metzler, president, presided over the business session. Bill Jordan read the Nativity Story from St. Luke.

Donald Metzler, at the organ, accompanied the group for singing Christmas carols. Gifts were exchanged and contests conducted.

Refreshments of hors d'oeuvres and punch were served throughout the evening from a table covered with a white linen cloth and decorated with holly and candelabra with red tapers.

The group repeated "The Lord's Prayer" and a dessert course was served at the close of the evening.

Carolyn Boyse, Charles Davis Exchange Vows

Mrs. Carolyn Louise Boyse of Stoutsville, and Mr. Charles E. Davis of Circleville, were united in marriage Saturday, Nov. 15.

The Rev. Harry Binegar of Washington C. H., performed the ceremony in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Milton J. Adkins, Route 1, Stoutsville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles O. Davis, 319 Long St. He is currently employed by Cellar Lumber Co. in Circleville.

The couple now resides at Stoutsville.

Bride Honored With Shower

Games were played with prizes won by Mrs. Janie Davis, Mrs. Charlotte Moss, Mrs. Opal Stevenson, Mrs. Carol Brown and Mrs. Emma Adkins.

Present for the occasion were Mrs. Maple Wood, Mrs. Louise Lemaster, Mrs. Opal Stevenson and Theresa, Mrs. Charlotte Moss, Mrs. Linda Brown, Jenny and Jimmy, Mrs. Edna Davis, Mrs. Carol Brown, Mrs. Janie Davis, Mrs. Emma Adkins, mother of the honored guest.

Unable to attend but sending gifts were Mrs. Evelyn Manson, Mrs. Cora Tatman and Mrs. Charles Jewell.

Refreshments were served by the hostess following the opening of gifts.

If you don't wear all your jewelry at the same time,

you need this.

Pure feminine logic. Where else would you find enough drawer space for it all? Look at it this way: our luxurious, double-drawer jewel case is really a necessity. You need the plushy velvet lining. To keep jewelry from tarnishing. You need all 37 compartments. To separate emeralds from pearls. And keep pairs of earrings from separating. The only things you don't absolutely need are the wonderfully gemmy colors. All they do is make your jewelry look more exquisite. For a mere

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

Too Much Advice Confuses Reader

DEAR ABBY: My problem is that I have had so much advice that I am dizzy and confused. And now I am asking you for some MORE advice, which shows you how mixed up I really am.

Three weeks ago my husband dropped dead of a heart attack. He was only 57 and had just had a complete check up. The doctor told him he could live to be 100, so you can imagine the shock I got when they called from in the middle of a canasta game and gave me the news.

I am now getting advice from all sides. Some say, "Sell the house and move into an apartment. What you need is a complete change of scenery." Others say, "Take a trip." Still others, "You will be miserable traveling alone. You can't run away from yourself. Stay home. You need to be with friends."

I also get business advice. Some say, "Sell the business. Some say, "Sell the business. business and run it yourself."

My two children are married and independent so I will have to make these decisions myself. How does a widow know who to listen to? Please tell me what to do.

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: The best advice I can give you is to take NO advice right now. You've suffered a tremendous shock, and are undoubtedly still under a great deal of strain. You need more time to "adjust" before making any decisions. What you want to do about the house and the business can wait until you've had more time to think. Your judgements will be less emotional and more rational then.

In the meantime, don't SELL anything, don't BUY anything, and don't SIGN anything. And good luck.

DEAR ABBY: I would appreciate it if you would print your opinion of fellows who say to girls, "I'll call you," but they never do. Thank you.

STILL WAITING FOR THAT CALL

DEAR STILL: Girls shouldn't believe everything they're told. When a fellow says, "I'll call you," he thinks that's what the girl expects to hear. (And he's right.) But it has about as much meaning as, "See you around," or "Let's get together—some time." It's a friendly, but insincere, remark.

The next time a fellow says, "I'll call you," if you really want to shake him up, say, "WHEN?"

DEAR ABBY: I get a real blast out of the woman who asked, "Should I give my husband a night out with the boys?"

In the last four months, my husband has been IN a total of 17 nights. We've been married for 25 years and it's always been this way, so I suppose I should be used to it by now.

Ohio Gets Grant

WASHINGTON (AP)—The offices of Ohio Sen. William B. Saxbe and Rep. Robert Taft Jr. announced Tuesday that the Department of the Interior had granted Ohio $2,114,315 from land and water conservation funds for recreation projects in the state. The money is to be used on a matching basis with the state appropriating a similar amount for the projects.

Aussies Cut Viet Force

CANBERRA (AP) — Prime Minister John Gorton said Tuesday that some of Australia's 7,500 troops in Vietnam will be withdrawn at the same time the United States makes its new 50,000-man reduction.

The withdrawal, he said, will be made in consultation with the South Vietnamese government.

"I have talked with the President of the United States about this," Gorton said, "and he expressed himself as happy to agree with our view."

New Zealand's Prime Minister Keith J. Holyoake said his government is not at present considering any reduction in its 500-man force in Vietnam. He said the United States, "which has for so long carried the main burden, should be the first to benefit from the strengthening of the South Vietnamese military forces."

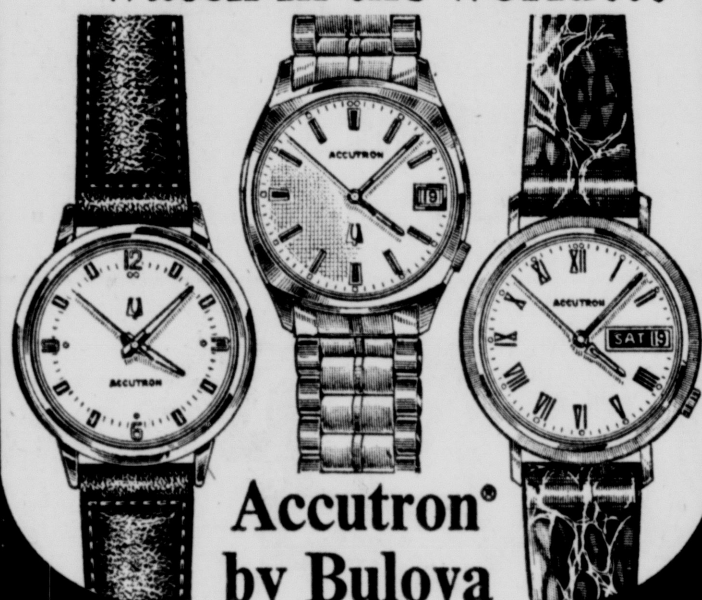

The South Korean government, which has about 50,000 men in Vietnam, said it was consulted in advance about the new American pullout. But presidential spokesman Kan Sang-wook said his government had no further comment.

DEAR ABBY: This is for "WONDERING IN ATLANTA." She was concerned about how it would look at her son's wedding with all the bridesmaids obviously pregnant. (They were married.) I should have been so lucky. At my son's wedding, the BRIDE was seven months pregnant, and interestingly enough, the groom was not the father.

Don't tell me not to nag him. You betcher life I nag him. Every chance I get. The house is clean and I'm a good cook, but I am sick and tired of making dinners for the garbage disposal. Get the idea?

I'm no beauty, but then, I never WAS. I just want to say that I'd be delighted if my husband had "A" night out. What I'd like is for him to have a few more nights "IN."

Armstrong Seeks Re-Election To Ohio Senate Post

HARRY ARMSTRONG

State Senator Harry L. Armstrong (R-Logan) has announced that he will seek re-election in 1970 to the Ohio Senate.

He will be a candidate at the May 5 primary for the Republican nomination in the 17th District, which includes Fairfield, Hocking, Pickaway, Ross, Vinton and the southeastern part of Franklin County.

Armstrong, who owns and operates a 215-acre farm in Starr and Washington Townships in Hocking County and is engaged in the real estate business in Logan, was first elected to the Senate in 1966. He previously served two consecutive terms in the Ohio House of Representatives.

He presently is a member of the Senate committees on Ways and Means, Urban and Highway Affairs, of which he is vice chairman and Agriculture and State agencies.

He also is a member of the interim Public Improvements Inspection Committee, the legislature's watchdog committee on capital improvements at state institutions and administration of state departments and agencies.

Armstrong pointed out that besides his support of other forward-looking legislation, he helped enact into law in the 1969 session 54 bills on which he was primary sponsor or co-sponsor, highlighted by bills in the fields of agriculture, natural resources, local government and highways.

He was original sponsor of a bill expanding powers to soil and water conservation district supervisors and county commissioners to help in construction and financing of soil and water conservation and flood control improvements in an expeditious manner.

He also was sponsor or co-sponsor of new laws creating an additional common pleas judgeship in Fairfield County; requiring periodic inspection of dams 10 feet or more high; making miners' black lung disease compensable under workers' compensation; authorizing permanent fishing licenses for persons 65 or older and increasing from $40,000 to $60,000 the minimum a county receives from the local government fund, which was increased by $12 million a year.

Prior to his election to the Ohio House of Representatives, Armstrong served six years as Starr Township trustee and eight years as a Hocking County commissioner.

He and his wife, Madeline, live at Logan, R.R. 3. They have four daughters.

Carr Resigns As Oberlin Head For U.S. Post

ROBERT K. CARR, president of Oberlin College since 1960, has announced he is retiring June 30 to take a job with the American Council on Education in Washington, D.C.

In a surprise announcement Tuesday night, Carr told a regularly scheduled faculty meeting that in his new post he will be in charge of a study on problems of the academic profession.

At 62, Carr has four years to go before mandatory retirement.

He is Oberlin's ninth president. No plans have been made to find a successor.

Loan Is Approved
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Appalachian Regional Commission in Washington has approved a $16,326 loan to cover most of the planning costs for a $1,239,400 low and moderate housing project in Steubenville.

Ohio Highway Department Opens Bids On Major Work

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Bids opened by the Ohio Department of Highways on new projects today brought to $370.5 million the value of construction and improvement work let to contractors this year.

Fifteen projects with a value of $24.5 million were on the bid opening list today. The next bid opening is set for next Jan. 27. Major projects in today's bid opening:

COLUMBUS—Second section of the Olentangy Expressway, a 1.9 mile stretch from east of Kinnear Road to Ackerman Road. Apparent low bid of $6.5 million was submitted by W.L. Johnson Construction Co., Columbus; state estimate is $7.2 million.

TOLEDO—A 1.2-mile project on Interstate 75 or Manhattan Expressway in Lucas County between Detroit Avenue, U.S. 25, and just west of Stickney Avenue. Apparent low bid of $5.2 million was entered by Pierce Construction Co., Holland; state estimate $5.4 million. Another Lucas County project includes improvement of 6.2 miles of U.S. 20 and Ohio 2. The S.E. Johnson Co. of Maumee entered the apparent low bid of $2.3 million. The state estimate was $3 million.

CINCINNATI—Construction of 4.9 miles of Interstate 275, Circle Freeway in Clermont and Hamilton counties. Apparent low bid of $5.5 million was submitted by John R. Jurgensen Co. of Cincinnati; state estimate $6.4 million. The project extends from Aicholtz Road in Clermont County to just east of Asbury Road in Hamilton County.

Part of the main Appalachian Development Highway System in Jackson County was included in today's bidding. Engle Construction Co. of McArthur entered an apparent low bid of $3.4 million for the 2.3-mile section of Ohio 124. The state estimate was $3.9 million.

For improving less than a half mile of Ohio 164 in Columbiana County, the Joseph Ruchett & Sons Co. of Youngstown entered the apparent low bid of $318,703. The state estimate was $334,000. It includes an overpass.

200 Teens Said N.Y. Drug Victims

NEW YORK (AP) More than 200 teen-agers have died this year from involvement with heroin, a city health official says.

Dr. Michael Baden, associate medical examiner, said Tuesday that 210 youngsters from 15 to 19 years old had died from heroin use this year, compared to 72 last year. Another 250 deaths from heroin have been reported in the age 20 to 24 bracket, he said.

Baden predicted more than 900 persons would die by the year's end from heroin. He spoke at a hearing of the New York State Democratic Advisory Committee on Crime and Safety in the Streets.

Meanwhile, Assemblyman Hulan Jack of Manhattan charged the Board of Education with "gross negligence" for expelling a boy who died Sunday at age 12 of a heroin overdose.

Walter Vandermeer, found dead in a Harlem apartment, was the youngest recorded narcotics victim in the city's history.

Jack said the school board had put Vandermeer "out onto the streets" and added, "This happens often in ghetto neighborhoods."

Vandermeer was expelled in May 1967, at age 9, as a behavior problem. He was assigned to a children's shelter, where officials have declined to say whether or not he attended classes.

Prisoners Discuss Heavy Finances
JOLIET, Ill. (AP)—There isn't much prisoners can do about the problem of security but some at Stateville penitentiary are discussing—with the warden's blessing—problems of securities.

About 110 of the 4,000 Stateville prisoners meet once a week, for two hours, with a representative of a Chicago brokerage firm to hear lectures, see films and talk about stocks and bonds and other forms of investment.

South Vietnamese Losses Rise As U.S. Cuts Back

SAIGON (AP)—The Saigon government's total of battlefield dead reported for the past seven months is more than double that of American forces, reflecting what President Nguyen Van Thieu calls their "increasing share" of the war effort.

South Vietnamese casualties have been higher than those suffered by American troops for 30 consecutive weeks, from May 10 through Dec. 6, according to official casualty summaries.

During that period, 11,450 government soldiers and 4,907 Americans were reported killed in action.

During the first 19 weeks of the year, before the withdrawal of some 60,000 U.S. troops began, casualties were nearly equal, with 4,930 South Vietnamese and 4,292 Americans reported killed on the battlefield.

In the northern Mekong Delta, from which American infantrymen were withdrawn last summer in the first troop cutback, a battalion of 500 South Vietnamese was taken by surprise at sunset Tuesday shortly after helicopters landed them in an area of palm groves and sugar cane fields to search out a Viet Cong battalion.

The government troops ran into mines, booby traps and a hail of machine gun fire that killed 20 men and wounded 63. Only two Viet Cong were known dead as the enemy pulled back in the dark.

In the past five weeks, South Vietnamese forces have been dealt at least four setbacks in the northern and central delta, with 113 of their men killed in those engagements and more than 100 wounded at a cost of only 16 Viet Cong known dead.

Viet Cong gunners shelled Saigon Tuesday for the first time in four months with a single 100-pound missile that landed in a group of houses adjacent to a hospital. Four civilians were wounded, one house was destroyed and two others were badly damaged.

Troops sweeping the site from which the rocket was fired found two more smaller unexploded rockets. A Vietnamese demolition team disarmed them.

U.S. Marines from the 5th Regiment reported killing 27

North Vietnamese and rounding up 28 persons suspected of being Viet Cong in two actions 18 miles southwest of Da Nang. Six Marines were wounded, U.S. headquarters said.

Two American helicopters were shot down, one near the Cambodian border 74 miles northeast of Saigon and the other in the Mekong Delta 118 miles southwest of Saigon. Five Americans were wounded.

Fifteen projects with a value of $24.5 million were on the bid opening list today. The next bid opening is set for next Jan. 27. Major projects in today's bid opening:

COLUMBUS — Second section of the Olentangy Expressway, a 1.9 mile stretch from east of Kinnear Road to Ackerman Road. Apparent low bid of $6.5 million was submitted by W.L. Johnson Construction Co., Columbus; state estimate is $7.2 million.

TOLEDO — A 1.2-mile project on Interstate 75 or Manhattan Expressway in Lucas County between Detroit Avenue, U.S. 25, and just west of Stickney Avenue. Apparent low bid of $5.2 million was entered by Pierce Construction Co., Holland; state estimate $5.4 million.

Another Lucas County project includes improvement of 6.2 miles of U.S. 20 and Ohio 2. The S.E. Johnson Co. of Maumee entered the apparent low bid of $2.3 million. The state estimate was $3 million.

CINCINNATI — Construction of 4.9 miles of Interstate 275, Circle Freeway in Clermont and Hamilton counties. Apparent low bid of $5.5 million was submitted by John R. Jurgensen Co. of Cincinnati; state estimate $6.4 million. The project extends from Aicholtz Road in Clermont County to just east of Asbury Road in Hamilton County.

Part of the main Appalachian Development Highway System in Jackson County was included in today's bidding. Engle Construction Co. of McArthur entered an apparent low bid of $3.4 million for the 2.3-mile section of Ohio 124. The state estimate was $3.9 million.

For improving less than a half mile of Ohio 164 in Columbiana County, the Joseph Bucheit & Sons Co. of Youngstown entered the apparent low bid of $318,703. The state estimate was $334,000. It includes an overpass.

NEW YORK (AP) — More than 200 teen-agers have died this year from involvement with heroin, a city health official says.

Dr. Michael Baden, associate medical examiner, said Tuesday that 210 youngsters from 15 to 19 years old had died from heroin use this year, compared to 72 last year. Another 250 deaths from heroin have been reported in the age 20 to 24 bracket, he said.

Baden predicted more than 900 persons would die by the year's end from heroin. He spoke at a hearing of the New York State Democratic Advisory Committee on Crime and Safety in the Streets.

Meanwhile, Assemblyman Hulan Jack of Manhattan charged the Board of Education with "gross negligence" for expelling a boy who died Sunday at age 12 of a heroin overdose.

Walter Vandermeer, found dead in a Harlem apartment, was the youngest recorded narcotics victim in the city's history.

Jack said the school board had put Vandermeer "out onto the streets" and added, "This happens often in ghetto neighborhoods."

Vandermeer was expelled in May 1967, at age 9, as a behavior problem. He was assigned to a children's shelter, where officials have declined to say whether or not he attended classes.

Prisoners Discuss Heavy Finances

JOLIET, Ill. (AP) — There isn't much prisoners can do about the problem of security but some at Stateville penitentiary are discussing—with the warden's blessing—problems of securities.

About 110 of the 4,000 Stateville prisoners meet once a week, for two hours, with a representative of a Chicago brokerage firm to hear lectures, see films and talk about stocks and bonds and other forms of investment.

South Vietnamese Losses Rise As U.S. Cuts Back

SAIGON (AP) — The Saigon government's total of battlefield dead reported for the past seven months is more than double that of American forces, reflecting what President Nguyen Van Thieu calls their "increasing share" of the war effort.

South Vietnamese casualties have been higher than those suffered by American troops for 30 consecutive weeks, from May 10 through Dec. 6, according to official casualty summaries.

During that period, 11,450 government soldiers and 4,907 Americans were reported killed in action.

During the first 19 weeks of the year, before the withdrawal of some 60,000 U.S. troops began, casualties were nearly equal, with 4,930 South Vietnamese and 4,292 Americans reported killed on the battlefield.

In the northern Mekong Delta, from which American infantrymen were withdrawn last summer in the first troop cutback, a battalion of 500 South Vietnamese was taken by surprise at sunset Tuesday shortly after helicopters landed them in an area of palm groves and sugar cane fields to search out a Viet Cong battalion.

The government troops ran into mines, booby traps and a hail of machine gun fire that killed 20 men and wounded 63. Only two Viet Cong were known dead as the enemy pulled back in the dark.

In the past five weeks, South Vietnamese forces have been dealt at least four setbacks in the northern and central delta, with 113 of their men killed in those engagements and more than 100 wounded at a cost of only 16 Viet Cong known dead.

Viet Cong gunners shelled Saigon Tuesday for the first time in four months with a single 100-pound missile that landed in a group of houses adjacent to a hospital. Four civilians were wounded, one house was destroyed and two others were badly damaged.

Troops sweeping the site from which the rocket was fired found two more smaller unexploded rockets. A Vietnamese demolition team disarmed them.

U.S. Marines from the 5th Regiment reported killing 27

North Vietnamese and rounding up 28 persons suspected of being Viet Cong in two actions 18 miles southwest of Da Nang. Six Marines were wounded, U.S. headquarters said.

Two American helicopters were shot down, one near the Cambodian border 74 miles northeast of Saigon and the other in the Mekong Delta 118 miles southwest of Saigon. Five Americans were wounded.

New Pacific Storm Hits Northwest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Clear and crisp weather dominated most of the nation today, but a new Pacific storm flung rain and snow into the Northwest.

Temperatures fell into the middle and lower 20s along the entire eastern seaboard as far south as central Georgia. Similarly cold readings ranged westward into the Rockies.

Rain or showers dampened the Pacific Coast from northern California through Washington. Gale warnings flew along the coast, and snow piled up on inland areas even though the storm center remained well out to sea.

A similar storm slapped the Northwest and ranged down the coast into central and southern California last week.

Snow flurries dusted the upper Great Lakes region and portions of interior New England.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 5 above zero at Concord, N.H., to 64 at Key West, Fla., and Corpus Christi, Tex.

Cincy Teachers Continue Talks On Pay Hikes

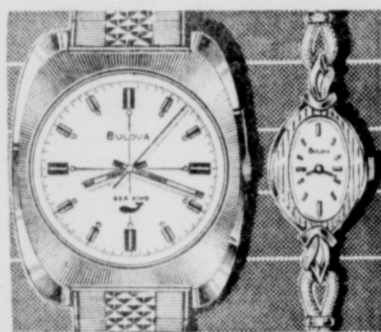

CINCINNATI (AP) — Teachers and school officials continue bargaining today on wages with agreement reported close, officials from both sides said Tuesday night.

The Cincinnati Teachers Association, representing 3,473 members, Tuesday night rejected a 6.7 per cent offer by the school. They said an 8 per cent hike would be sought.

Both sides agreed that beginning teachers should make $7,000 annually. The CTA is asking for $11,490 for teachers at the top with raises ranging from $500 to $840.

Scientific Award In Physics Goes To 29-Year-Old Man

NEW YORK (AP) — Physics is often a young man's game, a phenomenon demonstrated anew with the announcement of a major scientific award to a 29-year-old British theoretical physicist, Dr. Brian D. Josephson of the University of Cambridge.

Josephson won the award for fundamental work he did when he was seeking his doctorate, in 1962, in his early 20s.

The award, announced Tuesday, is the 1969 Research Corporation Award for outstanding contributions to science. Of the 38 scientists who have won the award, 15 have subsequently won a Nobel Prize.

The history of physics is filled with examples of brilliant insights and discoveries coming from young physicists taking a fresh look at things.

Prof. Nicholas Samios, a 38-year-old physicist at Brookhaven National Laboratory, Upton, N.Y., offered a reason for the youthful innovation:

"Generally it's because when you're young you're willing to try new ideas. You haven't been encumbered with stuff that's been around a long time.

"To do something big, you've got to change something radically. The older you get, the more conservative you get."

Last year's Research Award winner, Dr. Murray Gell-Mann of the California Institute of Technology, won this year's Nobel Prize in physics. He is 40 now, but made the first of his fundamental discoveries in sub-nuclear particles in 1953, in his 20s. He won his Ph.D. at 20, was a full professor at 22.

Jacobson's award was for basic work in superconductivity. Superconductors, metals such as tin and lead, lose their resistance to electricity at low temperatures.

The classic example of a young man's sweeping insight came from Albert Einstein, who found that matter and energy are the same and put forth his special theory of relativity in 1905—when he was 26. He was 37 when his general theory of relativity was published.

New Pacific Storm Hits Northwest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Clear and crisp weather dominated most of the nation today, but a new Pacific storm flung rain and snow into the Northwest.

Temperatures fell into the middle and lower 20s along the entire eastern seaboard as far south as central Georgia. Similarly cold readings ranged westward into the Rockies.

Rain or showers dampened the Pacific Coast from northern California through Washington. Gale warnings flew along the coast, and snow piled up on inland areas even though the storm center remained well out to sea.

A similar storm slapped the Northwest and ranged down the coast into central and southern California last week.

Snow flurries dusted the upper Great Lakes region and portions of interior New England.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 5 above zero at Concord, N.H., to 64 at Key West, Fla., and Corpus Christi, Tex.

Cincy Teachers Continue Talks On Pay Hikes

Frankfurter Departure Brought High Court Changes

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — On April 5, 1962, while sitting at a desk in his chambers, Felix Frankfurter fainted.

He had suffered a brief interruption of blood flow to the brain—a mild stroke.

A few days later, Justice Frankfurter had a second stroke. He would eventually return to the Supreme Court, but only as a long-term visitor, pushed in a wheelchair by a chauffeur.

Felix Frankfurter's 23-year career as an associate justice had ended. A vital restraint on the Warren Court was gone.

Personally a man of large emotions, Frankfurter had preached judicial restraint.

The court's intellectual lighting rod, he had tried to capture the mind and heart of Earl Warren when the new chief justice came to the court in 1954. But gradually Warren eased toward Justices Hugo L. Black and William O. Douglas, both active libertarians.

And when William J. Brennan Jr., who had studied under Frankfurter at Harvard, joined the court in 1957, the old professor was disappointed to see him rally immediately to the Black-Douglas banner.

But Black, Douglas, Warren and Brennan were only four votes out of nine. The Frankfurter team numbered five: the owl-like leader, John Marshall Harlan, Charles Evans Whittaker, Tom C. Clark and Potter Stewart.

In the first three years of the decade, they had upheld the deportation of ex-Communists and cancellation of their citizenship, the jailing of witnesses who would not cooperate with Red-hunting legislators, forced registration of the Communist Party, and censorship of motion pictures.

Each time the vote was 5 to 4. Each time Frankfurter, Whittaker, Clark, Harlan and Stewart were in the majority, with Warren, Black, Douglas and Brennan dissenting.

Civil rights stood apart from this narrow division. Enthusiastically, and often unanimously, the court had upheld the rights of Negroes to vote, to eat in interstate bus terminals, to sit in at lunch counters to protest segregation.

But otherwise, Frankfurter and his "leave-it-to-the-legislature" philosophy usually had its one vote.

Ten days before he fell ill the tide began to turn in a spectacular way.

Reversing an old Frankfurter hands-off decision, the court ruled that federal judges could decide whether state legislatures were set up in a fashion that discriminated against urban residents.

Arthur J. Goldberg, President Kennedy's secretary of labor, took Frankfurter's place. For the first time the liberal expansionists had a majority.

In 1963, the government was forbidden to strip draft evaders of their citizenship. Deportation of ex-Communists was halted. Left-wingers who would not testify before legislative committees were freed of contempt charges. The NAACP was assured it could keep secret its membership list.

Again, each time, the vote was 5 to 4. But the majority was Black, Douglas, Warren, Brennan and Goldberg.

The conservative wing was reduced to Clark, Harlan, Stewart—and Byron R. White, who had succeeded the physically exhausted Whittaker.

This narrow 5-4 liberal edge produced in 1964 the right of a suspect who is the "focus" of a police interrogation to have a lawyer at his side.

And in 1966, with Abe Fortas in Goldberg's place, another narrow 5-4 vote forbade police to take a man's confession without warning him he had a right to remain silent or to have a lawyer with him.

Critics of the court were especially irked that police procedures could be overhauled so completely by so close a vote.

So confidently did the court press ahead that in 1965 it divined a new right in the Constitution—the right of privacy.

This right, Douglas said as the court struck down a Connecticut ban on contraceptives, is "older than the Bill of Rights—older than our political parties, older than our school system."

Stewart, sounding very much like Frankfurter, said he could find no such right in the Bill of Rights and that the court should have left it to the people of Connecticut to repeal an evidently unwise law.

In 1967 there was an equally unprecedented leap forward: Henceforth, the court said, juvenile defendants are entitled to a lawyer, to remain silent and to cross-examine witnesses—the same rights the court had given adult defendants.

By the fall of 1967, talk of liberal and conservative wings of the court had become almost meaningless. There were hardly enough conservatives on the bench to constitute a wing.

Clark had retired when his son, Ramsey, became attorney general, and President Lyndon B. Johnson had elevated Thurgood Marshall, the U.S. solicitor general.

Marshall, an NAACP lawyer for 25 years and the court's first Negro, did not turn out to be a trail-blazer. But he fit in comfortably with the general sweep forward.

So did the so-called conservatives, sometimes. Stewart and White, for instance, spearheaded the drive against housing discrimination.

By the time Warren stepped down as chief justice in June 1969, the court, for the first time in history, had established a co-equal role of national leadership with the two other branches of government.

Will the court retreat in the seventies? Will the justices return to the passivism of Frankfurter?

President Nixon has made it unquestionably clear that he intends to rein in the Supreme Court if he can.

Fortas' resignation in the ethics flap last May and Warren's retirement opened two places. The advanced age of several of the justices—Black and Douglas, particularly—may double or even triple his chances.

So far, the President has been able to name a low-key conservative, Warren E. Burger, to succeed Warren. Presumably the Senate veto last month of Clement F. Haynsworth will not deter Nixon from naming another conservative for the Fortas seat.

Find Sergeant

Of Recruit Abuse

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—A Lackland Air Force Base drill sergeant was found innocent Tuesday on four charges of mistreating basic trainees last summer.

The court-martial board deliberated two hours before acquitting S. Sgt. Daniel W. S. Clark, 34, Oberlin, Ohio.

Clark was the third drill sergeant to be tried on mistreatment charges. The other two were convicted and fined $225 each.

Guilty Of Murder

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—Roswell Bynum, 26, accused of stabbing to death his 1-year-old daughter last May, was convicted of second-degree murder Tuesday by a three-judge panel. No date was set for sentencing.

Frankfurter Departure Brought High Court Changes

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — On April 5, 1962, while sitting at a desk in his chambers, Felix Frankfurter fainted.
He had suffered a brief interruption of blood flow to the brain—a mild stroke.
A few days later, Justice Frankfurter had a second stroke. He would eventually return to the Supreme Court, but only as a long visitor, pushed in a wheel-chair by a chauffeur.
Felix Frankfurter's 23-year career as an associate justice had ended. A vital restraint on the Warren Court was gone.
Personally a man of large emotions, Frankfurter had preached judicial restraint.
The court's intellectual lighting rod, he had tried to capture the mind and heart of Earl Warren when the new chief justice came to the court in 1954. But gradually Warren eased toward Justices Hugo L. Black and William O. Douglas, both active libertarians.
And when William J. Brennan Jr., who had studied under Frankfurter at Harvard, joined the court in 1957, the old professor was disappointed to see him rally immediately to the Black-Douglas banner.

But Black, Douglas, Warren and Brennan were only four votes out of nine. The Frankfurter team numbered five: the owlish leader, John Marshall Harlan, Charles Evans Whittaker, Tom C. Clark and Potter Stewart.
In the first three years of the decade, they had upheld the deportation of ex-Communists and cancellation of their citizenship, the jailing of witnesses who would not cooperate with Red-hunting legislators, forced registration of the Communist Party, and censorship of motion pictures.
Each time the vote was 5 to 4. Each time Frankfurter, Whittaker, Clark, Harlan and Stewart were in the majority, with Warren, Black, Douglas and Brennan dissenting.
Civil rights stood apart from this narrow division. Enthusiastically, and often unanimously, the court had upheld the rights of Negroes to vote, to eat in interstate bus terminals, to sit-in

at lunch counters to protest segregation.
But otherwise, Frankfurter and his "leave-it-to-the-legislature" philosophy usually had its one vote.
Ten days before he fell ill the tide began to turn in a spectacular way.
Reversing an old Frankfurter hands-off decision, the court ruled that federal judges could decide whether state legislatures were set up in a fashion that discriminated against urban residents.
Arthur J. Goldberg, President Kennedy's secretary of labor, took Frankfurter's place. For the first time the liberal expansionists had a majority.
In 1963, the government was forbidden to strip draft evaders of their citizenship. Deportation of ex-Communists was halted. Left-wingers who would not testify before legislative committees were freed of contempt charges. The NAACP was assured it could keep secret its membership list.

Again, each time, the vote was 5 to 4. But the majority was Black, Douglas, Warren, Brennan and Goldberg.
The conservative wing was reduced to Clark, Harlan, Stewart and Byron R. White, who had succeeded the physically exhausted Whittaker.
This narrow 5-4 liberal edge produced in 1964 the right of a suspect who is the "focus" of a police interrogation to have a lawyer at his side.
And in 1966, with Abe Fortas in Goldberg's place, another narrow 5-4 vote forbade police to take a man's confession without warning him he had a right to remain silent or to have a lawyer with him.
Critics of the court were especially irked that police procedures could be overhauled so completely by so close a vote.
So confidently did the court press ahead that in 1965 it divined a new right in the Constitution—the right of privacy. This right, Douglas said as the court struck down a Connecticut ban on contraceptives, is "older than the Bill of Rights—older than our political parties, older than our school system."
Stewart, sounding very much like Frankfurter, said he could find no such right in the Bill of Rights and that the court should have left it to the people of Connecticut to repeal an evidently unwise law.
In 1967 there was an equally unprecedented leap forward: Henceforth, the court said, juvenile defendants are entitled to a lawyer, to remain silent and to cross-examine witnesses—the same rights the court had given adult defendants.

By the fall of 1967, talk of liberal and conservative wings of the court had become almost meaningless. There were hardly enough conservatives on the bench to constitute a wing.
Clark had retired when his son, Ramsey, became attorney general, and President Lyndon B. Johnson had elevated Thurgood Marshall, the U.S. solicitor general.
Marshall, an NAACP lawyer for 25 years and the court's first Negro, did not turn out to be a trail-blazer. But he fit in comfortably with the general sweep forward.
So did the so-called conservatives, sometimes. Stewart and White, for instance, spearheaded the drive against housing discrimination.
By the time Warren stepped down as chief justice in June 1969, the court, for the first time in history, had established a co-

equal role of national leadership with the two other branches of government.
Will the court retreat in the seventies? Will the justices return to the passivism of Frankfurter?
President Nixon has made it unquestionably clear that he intends to rein in the Supreme Court if he can.
Fortas' resignation in the ethics flap last May and Warren's retirement opened two places. The advanced age of several of the justices—Black and Douglas, particularly—may double or even triple his chances.
So far, the President has been able to name a low-key conservative, Warren E. Burger, to succeed Warren. Presumably the Senate veto last month of Clement F. Haynsworth will not deter Nixon from naming another conservative for the Fortas seat.

Find Sergeant Not Guilty Of Recruit Abuse

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—A Lackland Air Force Base drill sergeant was found innocent Tuesday on four charges of mistreating basic trainees last summer.
The court-martial board deliberated two hours before acquitting S. Sgt. Daniel W. S. Clark, 34, Oberlin, Ohio.
Clark was the third drill sergeant to be tried on mistreatment charges. The other two were convicted and fined $225 each.

Guilty Of Murder

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Roswell Bynum, 26, accused of stabbing to death his 1-year-old daughter last May, was convicted of second-degree murder Tuesday by a three-judge panel. No date was set for sentencing.

Santa and the DUMBBELL

By Lucrece Beale

By Lucrece Beale
Synopsis: Booby Bobby uses a candy recipe from the Witch's Handbook to catch the Troll. By mistake the Ghost and the Princess and Santa eat the candy and change into a banana, a pomegranate and an apple.

CHAPTER 14

CLOUD CASTLE
BOOBY BOBBY put the yellow banana and the golden pomegranate and the big red apple in a bowl. "What shall we do?" he moaned.

"The first thing to do is destroy that candy," said Tweedleknives. "Witch's recipes would never work on the Troll anyway for he is a witch himself." He threw the candy, pots and pan into the fire.

Booby Bobby pleaded: "There must be some way to turn Santa and the Ghost and the Princess back into themselves. Isn't there anyone who knows magic and can help?"

"There is a Prince who knows about such things," murmured Tweedleknives.

"I will go to him!" cried Boob Bobby.

"Impossible," said Tweedleknives. "He lives in a castle no one has ever seen. It is said that it is somewhere in the sky but that is all make-believe, of course."

"I have often seen castles in the sky!" exclaimed Booby Bobby.

"You are daft," said Tweedleknives. "They were only clouds you saw." He took a very large handkerchief from his pocket. "It's no use. Santa has gone. Christmas is over forever." He rushed out honking his nose and wiping his eyes.

Booby Bobby went out and gazed at the cloudless sky. He sat down and waited. He waited all day and all night. He never took his eyes off the sky. Early the second morning he saw the castle—a great white palace flecked with pink and gold—floating overhead.

He started to shout for Tweedleknives but he thought, "No. He will say it is only clouds. I'll get one of the reindeer and fly to the castle on my own."

He ran all the way to the barn before he remembered that the reindeer had been turned into pigs. He watched them scrambling in the mud.

"If only they could fly! he thought wishfully. And then: "Well, who knows? Perhaps they can. No one has tried!" He climbed on the back of the littlest pig. He jingled the bells around its neck and cried, "Fly away to the castle in the sky!"

The pig grunted and snorted and took a few waddling steps. Suddenly it straightened its tail and rose out of the mud and soared towards the castle drifting overhead.

As they drew closer, the castle seemed to change shape and disappear. Booby Bobby was worried. Was it really only a cloud after all? He rode into a bank of clouds. For a long while he couldn't see anything at all. Then he was out on the other side and there was the castle—a real and true—only hidden now and then by puffs of clouds floating by.

There sat a crowned prince playing on a silver flute. It was a sound so sweet and pure that even the birds in the yard were still to listen.

The prince greeted Booby Bobby with surprise. "Everyone thinks the castle is made of clouds. We have never had

Supertankers Bring Fear Of Super Oil Pollution

NEW YORK (AP) — The era of the supertanker has brought with it the threat of catastrophic oil spills.

This was pointed up when the 207,000-ton Marpessa owned by Shell Tankers Ltd. exploded and sank Monday 80 miles off the coast of West Africa after making its first oil delivery.

While the Marpessa had unloaded its cargo at Rotterdam and was empty, the sinking sent shivers through the oil industry which is working to develop means of preventing and controlling oil spills.

"There would have been a hell of a lot of oil on the coast of Africa if the Marpessa had been loaded," said a delegate to an international conference on prevention and control of oil slicks which is under way here.

The danger of pollution from oil spills has received increased

Outlays For Research To Hit $25.7 Billion

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — In an annual survey, Battelle Memorial Institute reported Tuesday that expenditures in 1970 for research and development in the United States are expected to total $25.7 billion.

The forecast said this would represent an increase of less than 1 per cent over the total estimated for 1969, and that industry, rather than the federal government, will be largely responsible for the modest increase expected.

Views on Television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — There was an inadvertent Lloyd Bridges festival on network television Tuesday night.

Bridges, a busy free lance actor, starred in ABC's "Movie of the Week," playing an unshaven, white-haired gunfighter. A half hour after that 90-minute show started, he appeared as a solitary, anxious contemporary man in NBS' "World Premiere" feature, "Silent Night, Lonely Night."

Bridges was in better company and certainly possessed of a better script in the second show, which has to count as adult drama. It had some explicit situations and some explicit talk of a kind rarely seen in made-for-TV programs.

He played a husband summoned to a small New England town just before Christmas because there was a change in the condition of his wife, a patient for five years in a mental institution. There he meets an attractive young matron—Shirley Jones—also alone and unhappy over the holiday. Her son, attending a boys' school nearby, is in the infirmary and she has just received a letter from her husband in London, confessing an infidelity.

The relationship of the two developed against a winter background—exterior shots in Amherst—that sometimes looked like mobile Christmas cards. At first it was a most restrained acquaintance, and then as they revealed more and more of their inner selves they inevitably came together briefly.

There were long talky stretches when there was some sudsy philosophizing about love and morality. Some flashbacks and dream sequences didn't seem to add much.

Generally, however, it was an intelligent script with a point of view with which one might or might not agree. Bridges was excellent and Shirley Jones handled her role of a hurt, rejected woman effectively.

Raymond Burr and Betty White will team up for the second year in a row to narrate NBC's coverage of the New Year's Day Rose Parade. CBS, in the absence of Bess Myerson from show business, will turn the commenting over to June Lockart—who also took Bess' place in the "Miss America" films—and Bob Barker.

Lowell Thomas, who is close to celebrating his 40th year as a radio newscaster, will have a special on NBC-TV Jan. 29. It is a report on an expedition deep into the jungles of New Guinea to study primitive tribes.

"Hee Haw," the country-style variety hour and the first of the mid-season replacements, moves into the old Glen Campbell hour tonight on CBS, while Campbell moves on to a Sunday night hour. And then, too, tonight, there is Tiny Tim's marriage, amid 10,000 tulips, on the Johnny Carson show.

'Black Curfew' In Chicago Hit

Groups Blast Negro Move

CHICAGO (AP) — Spokesmen for a coalition of black groups in Chicago proclaimed Monday an unofficial curfew barring whites from Negro areas of the city from 6 p.m. to 6 a.m. But several black leaders swiftly denounced the move.

The Rev. C.T. Vivian and Earl Doty declared the curfew in the name of the newly-created United Front of Black Community Organizations, which claims 100 member groups.

The curfew was part of the reaction to the deaths Dec. 4 of two Illinois Black Panther party leaders, Fred Hampton, 21, and Mark Clark, 22, who were shot during a raid by police searching for illegal weapons.

Vivian said, "No whites will be permitted to enter the black community during these hours and those who are in the black community will be expected to leave by the 6 p.m. deadline."

He said the new front includes the group he leads, the Coalition for United Community Action, composed of some 60 organizations which last fall shut down construction sites to press demands for more black jobs in the building trades unions.

Police said no incidents connected with the curfew were reported Monday night.

State Sen. Charles Chew, a Negro who has been active in urging a probe of the Hampton shooting, called the announcement, "a foolish statement which does not have the support of the vast majority of the black community."

Essex Is Speaker On Urban Problem

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State School Supt. Martin Essex has told the Committee on Urban School Development it has an obligation to change the American cities from "cesspools" into "a new frontier."

Essex addressed the group's organizational meeting here Tuesday. The committee was created recently by the State Board of Education to direct urban education in the 1970s.

Haxby said oil and shipping companies have formed about 50 cooperatives to plan for handling oil spills, hoping to use such equipment as floating booms to contain the oil, chemical sprays and pumps.

Apart from the cleaning up after a major oil spill, there is the matter of prevention. Changes in ship design are under study.

"The continued use of single skin construction for barges and ships is seriously questioned," said Cmdr. Alvert G. Stirling of the U.S. Coast Guard. In the single skin design the outside hull forms the tank that holds the oil in. A rupture of the hull leads to spillage.

Hagan Runs For Governor As McIlwain Backs Out

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Meanwhile, a broadcasting firm sought to complete arrangements for televised debates between the two leading Republican contenders for the Senate.

Robert E. Hagan, a Trumbull County Commissioner announced he will run for governor. The only other Democrat in the race, so far, is Robert Sweeney, a Cleveland attorney.

Harry McIlwain, a Cincinnati lawyer who unsuccessfully sought the Statehouse seat in 1966 and was expected to run again, withdrew Tuesday, saying the field was "getting too crowded."

McIlwain mentioned Sweeney and potential candidates Mark McElroy, a former attorney general; Frank J. Lausche, former governor and senator, and John J. Gilligan, former congressman and unsuccessful senatorial candidate.

Avco Broadcasting, headquartered in Cincinnati, asked Tuesday for a meeting with representatives of Rep. Robert Taft Jr. and Gov. James A. Rhodes to iron out differences for a series of debates between the two GOP senatorial aspirants.

Rhodes accepted Avco's proposal for face to face debates. Taft also accepted but suggested other meetings in which the press and public would be allowed to ask questions.

In another development Tuesday, State Sen. Walter E. Powell of Fairfield announced he will run for the Republican nomination for state treasurer.

Other Republicans who have announced for treasurer include Dale E. Davis, 41, Troy; State Sen. David S. Holcomb, 45, Dayton, and Roger J. Pinta, 22, a Sandusky County school teacher.

He started to shout for Tweedledees but he thought, "No. He will say it is only clouds. I'll get one of the reindeer and fly to the castle on my own."

He ran all the way to the barn before he remembered that the reindeer had been turned into pigs. He watched them scrambling in the mud.

"If only they could fly! he thought wishfully. And then: "Well, who knows? Perhaps they can. No one has tried!" He climbed on the back of the littlest pig. He jingled the bells around its neck and cried, "Fly away to the castle in the sky!"

The pig grunted and snorted and took a few waddling steps. Suddenly it straightened its tail and rose out of the mud and soared towards the castle drifting overhead.

As they drew closer, the castle seemed to change shape and disappear. Booby Bobby was worried. Was it really only a cloud after all? He rode into a bank of clouds. For a long while he couldn't see anything at all. Then he was out on the other side and there was the castle—real and true—only hidden now and then by puffs of clouds floating by.

of the castle and walked slowly up an avenue paved with rose leaves. He went up marble steps and into a blue-ceilinged hall.

There sat a crowned prince playing on a silver flute. It was a sound so sweet and pure that even the birds in the yard were still to listen.

The prince greeted Booby Bobby with surprise. "Every-one thinks the castle is made of clouds. We have never had visitors before. Tell me how you happened to come."

Booby Bobby told him all that had happened in Santa Land and how it was said the Prince knew the way to break the Troll's spell on Santa and the Ghost and the Princess.

The Prince shook his head and said sadly, "You yourself cast the spell and only the Troll knows how to break it."

Supertankers Bring Fear Of Super Oil Pollution

NEW YORK (AP) — The era of the supertanker has brought with it the threat of catastrophic oil spills.

This was pointed up when the 207,000-ton Marpessa owned by Shell Tankers Ltd. exploded and sank Monday 80 miles off the coast of West Africa after making its first oil delivery.

While the Marpessa had unloaded its cargo at Rotterdam and was empty, the sinking sent shivers through the oil industry which is working to develop means of preventing and controlling oil spills.

"There would have been a hell of a lot of oil on the coast of Africa if the Marpessa had been loaded," said a delegate to an international conference on prevention and control of oil slicks which is under way here.

The danger of pollution from oil spills has received increased attention since the 118,000-ton tanker Torrey Canyon broke up on rocks seven miles off the southwest tip of England in March 1967. It spilled 30 million gallons of oil onto 100 miles of beach. The owners paid Britain and France $7.2 million for pollution damage.

"We all recognize that present technology for handling large spills—especially in the open sea—is, to say the least, primitive," L.P. Haxby, manager for air and water conservation of Shell Development Co., told the conference.

"Perhaps the most effective technique used to date was to spread straw as an absorbent and pick it up with rakes and pitchforks as was done in Santa Barbara, Calif. In an age when we can reach the moon, we should be able to do better than this."

Haxby said oil and shipping companies have formed about 50 cooperatives to plan for handling oil spills, hoping to use such equipment as floating booms to contain the oil, chemical sprays and pumps.

Apart from the cleaning up after a major oil spill, there is the matter of prevention.

Changes in ship design are under study.

"The continued use of single skin construction for barges and ships is seriously questioned," said Cmdr. Alvert G. Stirling of the U.S. Coast Guard. In the single skin design the outside hull forms the tank that holds the oil in. A rupture of the hull leads to spillage.

Outlays For Research To Hit $25.7 Billion

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — In an annual survey, Battelle Memorial Institute reported Tuesday that expenditures in 1970 for research and development in the United States are expected to total $25.7 billion.

The forecast said this would represent an increase of less than 1 per cent over the total estimated for 1969, and that industry, rather than the federal government, will be largely responsible for the modest increase expected.

Views on Television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — There was an inadvertent Lloyd Bridges festival on network television Tuesday night.

Bridges, a busy free lance actor, starred in ABC's "Movie of the Week," playing an unshaven, white-haired gunfighter. A half hour after that 90-minute show started, he appeared as a solitary, anxious contemporary man in NBS's "World Premiere" feature, "Silent Night, Lonely Night."

Bridges was in better company and certainly possessed of a better script in the second show, which has to count as adult drama. It had some explicit situations and some explicit talk of a kind rarely seen in made-for-TV programs.

He played a husband summoned to a small New England town just before Christmas because there was a change in the condition of his wife, a patient for five years in a mental institution. There he meets an attractive young matron—Shirley Jones—also alone and unhappy over the holiday. Her son, attending a boys' school nearby, is in the infirmary and she has just received a letter from her husband in London, confessing an infidelity.

The relationship of the two developed against a winter background—exterior were shot in Amherst—that sometimes looked like mobile Christmas cards. At first it was a most restrained acquaintance, and then as they revealed more and more of their inner selves they inevitably came together briefly.

There were long talky stretches when there was some sudsy philosophizing about love and morality. Some flashbacks and dream sequences didn't seem to add much.

Generally, however, it was an intelligent script with a point of view with which one might or might not agree. Bridges was excellent and Shirley Jones handled her role of a hurt, rejected woman effectively.

Raymond Burr and Betty White will team up for the second year in a row to narrate NBC's coverage of the New Year's Day Rose Parade, CBS, in the absence of Bess Myerson from show business, will turn the commenting over to June Lockart—who also took Bess' place in the "Miss America" finals—and Bob Barker.

Essex Is Speaker On Urban Problem

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State School Supt. Martin Essex has told the Committee on Urban School Development it has an obligation to change the American cities from "cesspools" into "a new frontier."

Lowell Thomas, who is close to celebrating his 40th year as a radio newscaster, will have a special on NBC-TV Jan. 29. It is a report on an expedition deep into the jungles of New Guinea to study primitive tribes.

"Hee Haw," the country-style variety hour and the first of the mid-season replacements, moves into the old Glen Campbell hour tonight on CBS, while Campbell moves on to a Sunday night hour. And then, too, tonight, there is Tiny Tim's marriage, amid 10,000 tulips, on the Johnny Carson show.

'Black Curfew' In Chicago Hit

Groups Blast Negro Move

CHICAGO (AP) — Spokesmen for a coalition of black groups in Chicago proclaimed Monday an unofficial curfew barring whites from Negro areas of the city from 6 p.m. to 6 a.m. But several black leaders swiftly denounced the move.

The Rev. C.T. Vivian and Earl Doty declared the curfew in the name of the newly-created United Front of Black Community Organizations, which claims 100 member groups.

The curfew was part of the reaction to the deaths Dec. 4 of two Illinois Black Panther party leaders, Fred Hampton, 21, and Mark Clark, 22, who were shot during a raid by police searching for illegal weapons.

Vivian said, "No whites will be permitted to enter the black community during these hours and those who are in the black community will be expected to leave by the 6 p.m. deadline."

He said the new front includes the group he leads, the Coalition for United Community Action, composed of some 60 organizations which last fall shut down construction sites to press demands for more black jobs in the building trades unions.

Police said no incidents connected with the curfew were reported Monday night.

State Sen. Charles Chew, a Negro who has been active in urging a probe of the Hampton shooting, called the announcement, "a foolish statement which does not have the support of the vast majority of the black community."

Opposition also came from the American Civil Liberties Union, which was listed as one of the United Front organizations. Jay A. Miller, Chicago ACLU president, said the curfew "is contrary to our policy of supporting the right of free movement."

Hagan Runs For Governor As McIlwain Backs Out

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Meanwhile, a broadcasting firm sought to complete arrangements for televised debates between the two leading Republican contenders for the Senate.

Robert E. Hagan, a Trumbull County Commissioner announced he will run for governor. The only other Democrat in the race, so far, is Robert Sweeney, a Cleveland attorney.

Harry McIlwain, a Cincinnati lawyer who unsuccessfully sought the Statehouse seat in 1966 and was expected to run again, withdrew Tuesday, saying the field was "getting too crowded."

McIlwain mentioned Sweeney and potential candidates Mark McElroy, a former attorney general; Frank J. Lausche, former governor and senator, and John J. Gilligan, former congressman and unsuccessful senatorial candidate.

Gilligan is expected to announce his candidacy for governor at a news conference Thursday morning.

Avco Broadcasting, headquartered in Cincinnati, asked Tuesday for a meeting with representatives of Rep. Robert Taft Jr. and Gov. James A. Rhodes to iron out differences for a series of debates between the two GOP senatorial aspirants.

Rhodes accepted Avco's proposal for face to face debates. Taft also accepted but suggested other meetings in which the press and public would be allowed to ask questions.

In another development Tuesday, State Sen. Walter E. Powell of Fairfield announced

he will run for the Republican nomination for state treasurer.

Powell, 38, was elected last year to a four year term as senator from Butler, Darke, Preble and part of Mercer counties.

Other Republicans who have announced for treasurer include Dale E. Davis, 41, Troy; State Sen. David S. Holcomb, 45, Dayton, and Roger J. Pinta, 22, a Sandusky County school teacher.

Ohio School Principals Vote Again On 3-Class Athletics

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Principals will be asked to vote again next month on the three-classification issue for state high school sports.

The Ohio High School Athletic Association board of control decided Tuesday to take another vote because none of the three proposals in the Nov. 21 referendum received a majority.

The proposal, a Class AAA, AA and A system received 309 votes, two short of a majority of the 621 votes cast. A second issue that would have divided schools evenly in Class AA and A collected 222 votes. Voting for no change were 33 principals.

Currently, a high school with 251 or more boys in the upper four grades or 201 or more in the upper three is in Class AA. The rest are Class A.

Fifty-seven votes were voided by the association and 202 schools did not vote in the last referendum.

The board said void ballots again would count in the total in the next referendum since it follows Roberts Rules of Order. It was the 57 voided ballots that created a furor in the last election.

North Texas State Rips Bearcat Defense, 89-71

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cincinnati's hopes of capturing another basketball title before it leaves the Missouri Valley Conference received a jolt from North Texas State Tuesday night.

The Eagles, deploying a press that the Bearcats couldn't break, breezed past Cincinnati 89-71 in the league opener for both teams.

The loss dampened longtime powerhouse Cincinnati's thoughts of snaring its eighth championship in its 13th and last season in the MVC.

North Texas State led from nearly the opening horn. They rolled to a 54-36 lead early in the second half and stayed ahead by at least 10 points the rest of the way out. The Bearcats were held to only one field goal in the last four minutes of play.

In other games:

Wilmington scored 40 points from the free throw line en route to a 112-105 victory over Kenyon, despite a 42-point performance by Kenyon's John Rinka. Tom Vessely led Wilmington shooters with 39 points.

Wittenberg shot a sizzling 64 per cent from the field and Jim Thrasher netted a game-high 25 points as the Tigers tripped Earlham 74-70.

Defense Key To Chiefs' Power

NEW YORK (AP) — When Coach Hank Stram analyzes his Kansas City Chiefs he usually talks about his multiple offense and how he treats it like his wife, always cloaking it in the latest fashions to dazzle the field.

Little Tigers Beat Smith

The Circleville Freshmen basketball team continued their winning ways Tuesday as they defeated Chillicothe J. A. Smith on the little Tigers court, 42-38.

Greg Hoskins paced the Tiger Cubs as he hit five from the field and six from the charity stripe for a total of 16 markers. Hoskins also played a fine defensive game.

Dave Truex dropped in 11 counters, Bill Halstenberg had six, Scott Clifton four, Tom Taylor three and Glen Gillespie two for the Circleville squad.

Beverly led the Smith boys with 13-points followed by Netter with nine and Gatliff with eight.

Dick Post Leads AFL In Rushing

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Wind-up Dick Post and watch him dash with the football, caring off bigger men like a billiard ball coming off a cushion.

But until this year the spring in the 5-foot-9, 190-pound San Diego Charger halfback would run down. Weekly contact with 230-pound linebackers would take its toll.

Post managed to stay somewhat healthy in 1969—he wound up leading the American Football League in rushing with 873 yards for a 4.8-yard average, well ahead of Boston's big Jim Nance with 750 yards.

The former Houston University athlete ranked fourth in the AFL in his rookie year of 1969 when he gained 663 yards. But in one game he got hit while standing still.

"The first time in my life that I stand still on a football field and it happens," recalled Post, who finished that season, then underwent surgery to repair cartilage and ligament damage in his right knee.

As a sophomore pro last year he ranked No. 5 in the league with 758 yards, but again submitted the same knee for cartilage surgery in the off-season.

House Of Halas In Big Trouble

CHICAGO (AP) — Never has the House of Halas been rocked so violently as it has this week when the crack in the Chicago Bears' armor grew into a fissure from the spear of quarterback Virgil Carter.

It was like the opening of a Pandora's Box when Carter was fined $1,000 for an outburst against the club and then ejected Tuesday from practices.

Bear Owner George Halas says Carter hasn't been released or suspended but "simply dismissed for the week. He will receive his full game salary, although not playing Sunday."

Edginess is touching all bases. One fan sums it up like this: "I've been sitting in the same seat at Bears' games for 25 years. I pay to see a first class product, not a living, breathing problem."

As the Bears take their 1-12 National Football League record—worst in their half century history—into Sunday's finale here against the Detroit Lions, they are being harpooned from all sides.

Super linebacker Dick Butkus' 5-year contract ends Jan. 1. He says a number of Bear players want to be traded or cut and adds: "Look at me . . . My contract is up, and I want to play with a winning team."

It is not clear if Butkus already has played out his option and could become a free agent Jan. 1, but he is ready at any rate to ask for a whopping raise—say $30,000 more to put him in the $80,000 bracket of Gale Sayers.

Among others said to be nursing some scars are quarterback Jack Cannannon, apparently doghoused long ago; guard George Seals, wounded with an assorted $7,400 in fines for missing games in an early "retirement-salary dispute" episode; center Mike Pyle, a co-captain benched lately without explanation to him; wide receiver Dick Gordon, who started brooding because not enough passes were thrown to him.

Guard Howard Mudd, obtained by San Francisco, insists he

of considerable talent and limited experience who may have more physical attributes than Dawson but, naturally enough, lacks some of the play-calling ability.

While Dawson is the key individual figure, the Chiefs have proven the AFL's most balanced team with the only ground attack that has gained more than 2,000 yards. That ground force consists of rugged Robert Holmes and little guys Mike Garrett and Warren McVea.

Holmes supplies the power while the 5-9, 190-pound Garrett and McVea, a 5-foot-9, 180-pounder acquired in a trade with Cincinnati, provide the deception operating behind a massive line from the multiple formations.

The line, led by 6-foot-6, 270-pound Jim Tyrer, somewhat camouflages Garrett and McVea in their initial movements, enabling them to spring away for the long-gainers. Garrett, in particular, has proved extremely versatile as the only player in the league among the top 10 in both rushing and receiving.

In addition, the Chiefs have a consistent scoring threat in kicker Jan Stenerud, who has set a pro record for most consecutive field goals and can put points on the board anytime the Kansas City attack bogs down inside the opposition 50.

If there is one rap against the Chiefs it is that their game, the multiple offense with its complexities, tends to become a problem to handle when the club falls behind and they find it difficult to improvise sufficiently from the studied game plan.

It should be noted, however, that the Chiefs aren't often forced to operate in that situation. They are that strong.

Next: Oakland.

LE, Westfall Battle Friday

Logan Elm and Westfall meet head to head Friday night in what promises to be a real skull knocker at the Westfall gym.

Coach Paul Hoskins' Mustangs are 3-4 on the season and feel this is a big game for them. A win will bring them even for the season and could start them on a winning streak.

Bigam is coming off a 43-point spurge against Hamilton Township which set a new record for Westfall basketball scoring.

COACH Chuck Pritchard's Braves will come into the game with a 2-2 record for the season and will be out to win. A victory will put the Logan Elm squad on the winning side of the ledger and they will take it from there.

The Braves use their run and shoot offense to good advantage and the Mustangs will have to be on their toes to cope with it.

The Logan Elm squad is paced by Danny Fausnaugh and they have run up some pretty good totals on the scoreboard this year. Pritchard will also floor a well coached squad.

Both teams like a man to man defense although they can zone if needed. The fight man to man should provide some interesting encounters on Friday.

The battles between these two schools have always provided plenty of fireworks and this engagement shouldn't be any different.

The rivalry between the Braves and the Mustangs will provide standing room only on Friday and it will be well worth it.

New Mexico State Beats New Mexico

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

Associated Press Sports Writer

"It feels good to be playing for No. 1 again . . . when you know you have a chance," says Coach Lou Henson of New Mexico State.

The Aggies, beaten by Lew Alcindor and UCLA in the last two NCAA Western playoffs, are currently ranked No. 3. But they continued their drive toward the top spot Tuesday with a 91-73 rout of New Mexico, their seventh consecutive victory.

"If we had been in another region the last two years, my kids think they could have made the final four," says Henson.

Leading the unbeaten Aggies against the outmanned Lobos were Jimmy Collins and Sam Lacey, who spent the summer doing construction work together in Syracuse, N.Y. They wrecked New Mexico with 25 and 19 points, respectively, with Collins getting 21 in the second half as the Aggies raced away from a 33-27 halftime lead.

Willie Long paced the losers with 28 points.

Three other members of the Associated Press' Top Twenty also saw action. Fourth-ranked Davidson trimmed Richmond 88-77, No. 7 North Carolina held off Virginia 80-76 and 12th-ranked Purdue walloped Dartmouth 82-58.

Doug Cook with 22 points and sophomore Brian Adrian with 20 sparked Davidson's 22nd consecutive triumph over Southern Conference opposition. Mike Maloy added 17 and Jerry Kroll 14.

Kenny Foster had 22 for Richmond, which dropped out of contention by going four minutes without a field goal after pulling to within 20-17.

North Carolina trailed Virginia throughout the first half before six quick points by Lee Eggleston erased most of a seven-point deficit. The Tar Heels took the lead for good at 52-50 on two free throws by Jim Delaney.

Carolina's Charley Scott led all scorers with 23 points.

Purdue ran off 21 straight points early in the second half after previously unbeaten Dartmouth had tied the score at 43.

George Faerber had seven of the 21 and finished with a game high 18. The Boilermakers again played without the injured Rick Mount, who is expected back for the ECAC Holiday Festival in New York beginning Dec. 27.

Elsewhere, North Texas State handed Cincinnati its first setback 89-71 in the Missouri Valley Conference opener for both sides. Joe Hamilton and Crest Whitaker split 46 points for the winners.

Jeff Haliburton pumped in 26 points to lead the Bulldogs over Nevada-Reno 101-75 and 6-foot-11 Bill Smith scored 21 points and Bob McDaniel 19 as Syracuse drubbed Westminster of Pennsylvania 89-51.

Wichita State opened its Missouri Valley campaign with an 82-78 triumph over St. Louis as 5-9 Greg Carney hit three of his 23 points in the final 43 seconds.

In a doubleheader at Philadelphia, La Salle struggled by West Chester 92-80 and St. Joseph's outlasted Providence 68-65. Yale won an Ivy League game from Brown 64-58.

Ohio School Principals Vote Again On 3-Class Athletics

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Principals will be asked to vote again next month on the three-classification issue for state high school sports.

The Ohio High School Athletic Association board of control decided Tuesday to take another vote because none of the three proposals in the Nov. 21 referendum received a majority.

The proposal, a Class AAA, AA and A system received 309 votes, two short of a majority of the 621 votes cast. A second issue that would have divided schools evenly in Class AA and A collected 222 votes. Voting for no change were 33 principals.

Currently, a high school with 251 or more boys in the upper four grades or 201 or more in the upper three is in Class AA. The rest are Class A.

Fifty-seven votes were voided by the association and 202 schools did not vote in the last referendum.

The board said void ballots again would count in the total in the next referendum since it follows Roberts Rules of Order. It was the 57 voided ballots that created a tie in the last election.

The board also noted Roberts Rules of Order terms it no election when a candidate or issue does not receive a majority of the votes.

Commissioner Harold Meyer made it clear his office is not opposed to a change. "It sure will make it harder to run tournaments, but we are not opposed to three classes," he said.

The board also backed decisions by the Canton Board of Education and Ohio high schools principals forbidding football in Canton next fall if that city's schools do not open before November.

Canton school officials maintained after defeat of a bond levy last week that McKinley, Timken, Lincoln and Lehman high schools would not open in September.

"If you don't have an education program, how can you have an athletic program?" Meyer asked.

The association sanctioned the 1970 North-South All-Star Football Classic in Canton. Sanctioning of the basketball all-star contest in Marion is expected at the next board of control meeting.

Among others said to be nursing some scars are quarterback Jack Concannon, apparently doghouse long ago; guard George Seals, wounded with an assorted $7,400 in fines for missing games in an early "retirement-salary dispute" episode; center Mike Pyle, a co-captain benched lately without explanation to him; wide receiver Dick Gordon, who started brooding because not enough passes were thrown to him.

Guard Howard Mudd, obtained by San Francisco, insists he

of considerable talent and limited experience who may have more physical attributes than Dawson but, naturally enough, lacks some of the play-calling ability.

While Dawson is the key individual figure, the Chiefs have proven the AFL's most balanced team with the only ground attack that has gained more than 2,000 yards. That ground force consists of rugged Robert Holmes and little guys Mike Garrett and Warren McVea.

Holmes supplies the power while the 5-9, 190-pound Garrett and McVea, a 5-foot-9, 180-pounder acquired in a trade with Cincinnati, provide the deception operating behind a massive line from the multiple formations.

The line, led by 6-foot-6, 270-pound Jim Tyrer, somewhat camouflages Garrett and McVea in their initial movements, enabling them to spring away for the long-gainers. Garrett, in particular, has proved extremely versatile as the only player in the league among the top 10 in both rushing and receiving.

In addition, the Chiefs have a consistent scoring threat in kicker Jan Stenerud, who has set a pro record for most consecutive field goals and can put points on the board anytime the Kansas City attack bogs down inside the opposition 50.

If there is one rap against the Chiefs it is that their game, the multiple offense with its complexities, tends to become a problem to handle when the club falls behind and they find it difficult to improvise sufficient from the studied game plan.

It should be noted, however, that the Chiefs aren't often forced to operate in that situation. They are that strong.

LE, Westfall Battle Friday

Logan Elm and Westfall meet head to head Friday night in what promises to be a real skull knocker at the Westfall gym.

Coach Paul Hoskins' Mustangs are 3-4 on the season and feel this is a big game for them. A win will bring them even for the season and could start them on a winning streak.

Bigam is coming off a 43-point splurge against Hamilton Township which set a new record for Westfall basketball scoring.

COACH Chuck Pritchard's Braves will come into the game with a 2-2 record for the season and will be out to win. A victory will put the Logan Elm squad on the winning side of the ledger and they will take it from there.

The Braves use their run and shoot offense to good advantage and the Mustangs will have to be on their toes to cope with it.

The Logan Elm squad is paced by Danny Fausnaugh and they have run up some pretty good totals on the scoreboard this year. Pritchard will also floor a well coached squad.

Both teams like a man to man defense although they can zone if needed. The tight man to man should provide some interesting encounters on Friday.

The battles between these two schools have always provided plenty of fireworks and this engagement shouldn't be any different.

The rivalry between the Braves and the Mustangs will provide standing room only on Friday and it will be well worth it.

New Mexico State Beats New Mexico

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN

Associated Press Sports Writer

"It feels good to be playing for No. 1 again . . . when you know you have a chance," says Coach Lou Henson of New Mexico State.

The Aggies, beaten by Lew Alcindor and UCLA in the last two NCAA Western playoffs, are currently ranked No. 3. But they continued their drive toward the top spot Tuesday with a 91-73 rout of New Mexico, their seventh consecutive victory.

"If we had been in another region the last two years, my kids think they could have made the final four," says Henson.

Leading the unbeaten Aggies against the outmanned Lobos were Jimmy Collins and Sam Lacey, who spent the summer doing construction work together in Syracuse, N.Y. They wrecked New Mexico with 25 and 19 points, respectively, with Collins getting 21 in the second half as the Aggies raced away from a 33-27 halftime lead.

Willie Long paced the losers with 28 points.

Three other members of The Associated Press' Top Twenty also saw action. Fourth-ranked Davidson trimmed Richmond 88-77. No. 7 North Carolina held off Virginia 80-76 and 12th-ranked Purdue walloped Dartmouth 82-58.

Doug Cook with 22 points and sophomore Brian Adrian with 20 sparked Davidson's 22nd consecutive triumph over Southern Conference opposition. Mike Maloy added 17 and Jerry Kroll 14.

Kenny Foster had 22 for Richmond, which dropped out of contention by going four minutes without a field goal after pulling to within 20-17.

North Carolina trailed Virginia throughout the first half before six quick points by Lee Eggleston erased most of a seven-point deficit. The Tar Heels took the lead for good at 52-50 on two free throws by Jim Delaney.

Carolina's Charley Scott led all scorers with 23 points.

Purdue ran off 21 straight points early in the second half after previously unbeaten Dartmouth had tied the score at 43.

George Faerber had seven of the 21 and finished with a game high 18. The Boilermakers again played without the injured Rick Mount, who is expected back for the ECAC Holiday Festival in New York beginning Dec. 27.

Elsewhere, North Texas State handed Cincinnati its first setback 89-71 in the Missouri Valley Conference opener for both sides. Joe Hamilton and Crest Whitaker split 46 points for the winners.

Jeff Haliburton pumped in 26 points to lead the Bulldogs over Nevada-Reno 101-75 and 6-foot-11 Bill Smith scored 21 points and Bob McDaniel 19 as Syracuse drubbed Westminster of Pennsylvania 89-51.

Wichita State opened its Missouri Valley campaign with an 82-78 triumph over St. Louis as 5-9 Greg Carney hit three of his 23 points in the final 43 seconds.

In a doubleheader at Philadelphia, La Salle struggled by West Chester 92-80 and St. Joseph's outlasted Providence 68-65. Yale won an Ivy League game from Brown 64-58.

House Of Halas In Big Trouble

CHICAGO (AP) — Never has the House of Halas been rocked so violently as it has this week when the crack in the Chicago Bears' armor grew into a fissure from the spear of quarterback Virgil Carter.

It was like the opening of a Pandora's Box when Carter was fined $1,000 for an outburst against the club and then excused Tuesday from practices. Bear Owner George Halas says Carter hasn't been released or suspended but "simply dismissed for the week. He will receive his full game salary, although not playing Sunday."

Edginess is touching all bases. One fan sums it up like this: "I've been sitting in the same seat at Bears' games for 25 years. I pay to see a first class product, not a living, breathing problem."

As the Bears take their 1-12 National Football League record —worst in their half century history—into Sunday's finale here against the Detroit Lions, they are being harpooned from all sides.

Super linebacker Dick Butkus' 5-year contract ends Jan. 1. He says a number of Bear players want to be traded or cut and adds: "Look at me . . . My contract is up, and I want to play with a winning team."

It is not clear if Butkus already has played out his option and could become a free agent Jan. 1, but he is ready at any rate to ask for a whopping raise —say $30,000 more to put him in the $80,000 bracket of Gale Sayers.

Among others said to be nursing some scars are quarterback Jack Concannon, apparently doghouse long ago; guard George Seals, wounded with an assorted $7,400 in fines for missing games in an early "retirement-salary dispute" episode; center Mike Pyle, a co-captain benched lately without explanation to him; wide receiver Dick Gordon, who started brooding because not enough passes were thrown to him.

Miami Coaching Staff Set For Top Games

By GEORGE STRODE
Associated Press Sports Writer
OXFORD, Ohio (AP) — Miami University's cradle of football coaches rocks better than ever with three of its men guiding bowl-bound college teams and a fourth working on another Super Bowl shot.

Weeb Ewbank is preparing his New York Jets, defending Super Bowl champions, for an American Football League playoff game against Kansas City Saturday.

Glenn (Bo) Schembechler has Michigan in the Rose Bowl, Ara Paraseghian takes Notre Dame to the Cotton Bowl and Paul Dietzel will coach South Carolina in the Peach Bowl.

Ewbank's Jets repeated as the AFL Eastern Division kings. Schembechler's Wolverines shared the Big Ten crown with Ohio State and Carmen Cozza's Yale team shared the Ivy League title with Dartmouth and Princeton.

Eleven former Redskins are head college coaches and another four graduates lead professional teams. Thirty-two Miami men coach college football and seven are in the pro ranks.

Why has this Southwestern

Ohio college of nearly 12,000 students become a football coaching breeding ground?

Illinois coaching immortal Bob Zuppke started the cradle rocking in the 1920s.

"Illinois was going great guns," Miami Athletic Director Dick Shrider remembered. "Some of our people went to coaching schools under Zuppke. They liked what they saw and started coaching classes here. Guys like Weeb Ewbank and Paul Brown were in the first classes. That's the way it got started," Shrider said.

"Give Sid Gillman credit, too.

He did a fabulous job of recruiting and coaching after World War II," the Miami AD continued.

"Miami's teams could have played anybody in the country at the time," he said. "The biggest games they had were in practice during the week. People like Paraseghian, Cozza, Dietzel and (John) Pont were on them."

"Once we're out in the coaching field Miami men look after each other," said Pont, who guided Indiana to the 1967 Big Ten crown.

Paraseghian's comment that "success breeds success" could not be truer in his own case. He has either worked with or under such coaches as Ewbank, Brown, Gillman, Blanton Collier (Cleveland Browns), Woody Hayes (Ohio State) and George Blackburn (Virginia).

"Football is very important on that campus," Schembechler said. "No one has accused it of being overemphasized either. There are just not many other activities."

Other Miami graduates in head college jobs are Doc Urich at Northern Illinois, John McVay at Dayton, Bill Mallory at Miami, Jim Root at New Hampshire, Tom Mooney at McGill and Nobby Wirkowski at York.

Besides Ewbank, Brown at Cincinnati and Clive Rush at Boston have head coaching jobs in the AFL. Gillman quit recently because of illness as head coach of the San Diego Chargers.

Miami has been the training grounds for five coaches of the year. They are Brown, when he was at Ohio State (1942) Earl (Red) Blaik at Army (1964), Dietzel at Louisiana State (1955), Paraseghian at Notre Dame (1964) and Pont at Indi-

Boston Celtics Beat Detroit

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Things are beginning to look up for the Boston Celtics again, and things are beginning to look down for the New York Knicks. The once powerful Celtics, who ruled the National Basketball Association for so many years, have had their troubles this season in the absence of retired Bill Russell, but Tuesday night offered some hope—they moved out of the Eastern Division cellar with a 117-98 victory over Detroit.

On the other hand, the once lowly Knicks, who spent so much time at the bottom of the division during Boston's heyday years, have become the scourge of the league, until the last week. The Knicks lost their third straight and fourth game in five outings, dropping a 125-124 overtime decision to Atlanta.

In other games, San Diego overcame a nine-point fourth quarter deficit and beat Chicago 110-101, Philadelphia crushed Phoenix 141-119, and San Francisco turned back Seattle 125-119.

The Celtics moved a half game ahead of Detroit by rattling off 11 straight points in the last 1½ minutes of the third quarter for a decisive 18-point lead.

lead, Boston's Larry Siegfried and Detroit's Terry Dischinger exchanged punches with 2:25 left, but Siegfried finished with 27 points while Jimmy Walker had 28 for the Pistons.

Walt Hazzard's free throw with 4 seconds left gave Atlanta a decisive 125-122 lead that offset Dick Barnett's final two free throws for the Knicks. New York blew several chances to win, first in regulation time when Dave DeBusschere, who had 27 points, made only one of three free throws for a 113-113 tie with 13 seconds to go, and again when DeBusschere missed a jump shot with four seconds left in overtime and Willis Reed fielded the rebound in the last second.

New York, which had rolled to a 26-2 record and a record 18 straight victories earlier, now stands at 27-6 after Joe Caldwell's 28 points, Hazzard's 27 and Bill Bridges' 26 for the Hawks beat them.

Jim Barnett scored 15 of his 22 points and Elvin Hayes 10 of his 31 in the final quarter for San Diego, and Barnett survived a punch by Chet Walker that knocked him to the floor.

Top Dallas, 108-104

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Roger Brown and Mel Daniels did most of the scoring for Indiana but it was a three-point basket by John Barnhill that clinched the Pacers victory and increased their American Basketball Association lead in the East.

The Pacers, now 20-5 after Tuesday night's 108-104 triumph over Dallas, increased their East Division margin to 4½ games over Kentucky, which dropped a 102-101 decision to Los Angeles in the first game of a doubleheader at Washington. In the nightcap, the Caps bombed Carolina 135-114. There were no other games scheduled.

Boston Celtics Beat Detroit

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Things are beginning to look up for the Boston Celtics again, and things are beginning to look down for the New York Knicks.

The once powerful Celtics, who ruled the National Basketball Association for so many years, have had their troubles this season in the absence of retired Bill Russell, but Tuesday night offered some hope—they moved out of the Eastern Division cellar with a 117-98 victory over Detroit.

On the other hand, the once lowly Knicks, who spent so much time at the bottom of the division during Boston's heyday years, have become the scourge of the league, until the last week. The Knicks lost their third straight and fourth game in five outings, dropping a 125-124 overtime decision to Atlanta.

In other games, San Diego overcame a nine-point fourth quarter deficit and beat Chicago 110-101. Philadelphia crushed Phoenix 141-119, and San Francisco turned back Seattle 125-119.

The Celtics moved a half game ahead of Detroit by rattling off 11 straight points in the last 1½ minutes of the third quarter for a decisive 18-point lead.

Boston's Larry Siegfried and Detroit's Terry Dischinger exchanged punches with 2:25 left, but Siegfried finished with 27 points while Jimmy Walker had 28 for the Pistons.

Walt Hazzard's free throw with 4 seconds left gave Atlanta a decisive 125-122 lead that offset Dick Barnett's final two free throws for the Knicks. New York blew several chances to win, first in regulation time when Dave DeBusschere, who had 27 points, made only one of three free throws for a 113-113 tie with 13 seconds to go, and again when DeBusschere missed a jump shot with four seconds left in overtime and Willis Reed fielded the rebound in the last second.

New York, which had rolled to a 26-2 record and a record 18 straight victories earlier, now stands at 27-6 after Joe Caldwell's 38 points, Hazzard's 27 and Bill Bridges' 26 for the Hawks beat them.

Jim Barnett scored 15 of his 22 points and Elvin Hayes 10 of his 31 in the final quarter for San Diego, and Barnett survived a punch by Chet Walker that knocked him to the floor.

Order Union Election For Umpires

WASHINGTON (AP) — After months of study, the National Labor Relations Board ordered a union election for the 24 umpires in the American League, opening up baseball and other professional sports for jurisdiction under the nation's labor laws.

The ruling, announced Tuesday by the Board was greeted by Richard Moss, counsel for the Major League Baseball Players Association as "a monumental decision that brings all professional sports under the protection of the NLRB for the first time." Moss spoke in San Juan, site of the Players Association meeting.

The board in a 4-1 vote, ordered a representation election for umpires within 30 days. The election had been requested by the umpires, who had charged the American League with unfair labor practices in dismissal of Al Salerno and Bill Valentine 14 months ago.

Joe Cronin, the AL president, had said the two umpires were dropped because of incompetence. The umpires had replied they were fired for trying to unionize other umpires.

After Tuesday's decision, Cronin in Boston, said: "I wouldn't want to venture an opinion. We don't have anything to do with it and we haven't heard anything officially."

The board rejected the league's argument that umpires were supervisors as defined by the National Labor Relations Act and thus were not eligible for union organization.

British House Of Lords Eyes End To Death Penalty

LONDON (AP) — The British House of Commons voted nearly 2 to 1 Tuesday night to abolish capital punishment, but the outcome in the House of Lords is in doubt.

The Lords open a two-day debate on the issue today, with many Conservative peers favoring the return of the hangman. Two amendments were proposed in the upper house, one to delay a decision until next summer and another to postpone the decision for at least another year.

Parliament in 1965 suspended the death penalty for a trial period of five years. The House of Commons voted 343-185 last night to make the suspension permanent.

It was a free "vote of conscience," unrestricted by party instructions.

Home Secretary James Callaghan had introduced the resolution although it was not a government bill, and he threatened to resign if the measure was defeated.

One public opinion poll showed 85 per cent of those questioned in favor of restoring the death penalty, and a petition with one million signatures supporting this view was delivered to the House. But Callaghan urged the members to "act in advance of public opinion."

"Parliament has done it before," he said, "and Parliament was not wrong. Let us give the lead again."

Presenting figures which he said made Britain "appear to be an oasis in a violent world," Callaghan reported that so far this year 172 persons in England and Wales have been charged with murder, compared with 208 last year. He also reported that since World War II, 17 police officers had been murdered on duty and one prison officer had been slain. He said the figures were higher in most other European countries and 10 times as high in the United States.

The Prison Officers Association and the Police Federation condemned the House action. The pre-1965 law prescribed hanging for certain types of murder only, including that of a policeman or a prison officer.

Meat, Bone Meal Is Confiscated

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The U.S. Food and Drug Administration today ordered the confiscation of more than 900 pounds of meat and bone meal from Ziegler Milling in Bucyrus because of possible food poisoning elements.

Asst. U.S. Atty. Norman W. Holt II said the meal had been manufactured by Hygrade Food Products of Indiana and contained salmonella bacteria which causes food poisoning.

He said agents were also ordered to seize 700 pounds of Hygrade digester tankage, a type of meal. He said the products were shipped from Indiana to Bucyrus in September.

Florida To Set Indians Up In Alligator-Raising Work

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The state Indian Affairs Commission has decided to put Florida's Seminoles and Miccosukees into the alligator-raising business in 1970.

The purpose is twofold: to lift the income of the 2,200 Indians above poverty level and offset the ravages of alligator poachers who now ship some 15,000 hides a year to black markets.

Ross Allen, a commission member, said the proposal has the backing of Gov. Claude Kirk; Joe Dan Osceola, president of the Seminole tribes; and Buffalo Tiger, chief of the Miccosukee.

The project will start next year with the designation of Indians as authorized alligator keepers on Florida's four reservations—Brighton, Miccosukee, Dania and Big Cypress. A state permit is required for keeping alligators in captivity.

Allen said that if the reptiles thrive under care of the Indians, the plan will be enlarged by 1972.

Woman Is Convicted Of Manslaughter

CINCINNATI (AP) — A probation investigation got underway in the case of Mrs. Claudine M. Howard, 41, convicted Tuesday of first degree manslaughter in Hamilton County Common Pleas Court.

She was convicted of killing Mrs. Sadie Bell McKinney, 4, in a street fight June 18, in the West End area with a pair of scissors. Mrs. Howard said Mrs. McKinney was armed with a baseball bat.

At that point the animal farming will be extended from the reservations into the watery wilds of the Everglades, chief habitat of the American alligator.

The Indians then will be expected to protect the wild alligators from the poachers, Allen said.

As productivity grows, the first goal will be to restock the Everglades.

Step two will be sale of the animals to wildlife exhibits, zoos and research organizations across the world.

When production really gets into high gear, Allen said, the Indians should be able to saturate the alligator leather market with legal hides.

Not Guilty Plea Entered In Tate Case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A girl member of Charles Manson's hippie-style clan has pleaded innocent to murdering actress Sharon Tate and six others and a prosecutor says she may get a separate trial.

Susan Denise Atkins, 21, willowy and impassive, spoke a soft "Not guilty," then flashed a bright grin as she made her plea Tuesday before Superior Court Judge William Keene.

Miss Atkins, Manson, 35, Charles D. "Tex" Watson, 24, Linda Kasabian, 20, and Patricia Krenwinkel, 22, have been charged with five murders in the Tate case.

The county grand jury accused the same five, plus another girl clan member, Leslie Van Houten, 19, of killing Leno LaBianca, 44, and his wife Rosemary, 38, who owned a chain of Hollywood markets, in the LaBianca home the night after the slaughter at the Tate estate.

If prosecutors decide to use statements from Miss Atkins, who has said she was present at the killings, and if her attorneys request a separate trial for her, then under the law she can't be tried with the others, said Deputy Dist. Atty. Aaron Stovitz.

Judge Keene set Miss Atkins' trial for Feb. 9. He will hear pleas Monday from Manson, Mrs. Kasabian and Miss Van Houten.

Attorney General Fights Penn Central

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Atty. Gen. Paul Brown asked the Interstate Commerce Commission Tuesday to dismiss a Penn. Central application to abandon 17 miles of track between Orville in Wayne County and Holmesville in Holmes County.

Brown said Penn Central has been "hiding behind the jurisdictional skirts" of the ICC to delay court action on a suit filed by the state seeking to have rail service restored in the area. The railroad suspended service last July 15.

Susan Denise Atkins, 21, willowy and impassive, spoke a soft "Not guilty," then flashed a bright grin as she made her plea Tuesday before Superior Court Judge William Keene.

Miss Atkins, Manson, 35, Charles D. "Tex" Watson, 24, Linda Kasabian, 20, and Patricia Krenwinkel, 22, have been charged with five murders in the Tate case.

The county grand jury accused the same five, plus another girl clan member, Leslie Van Houten, 19, of killing Leno LaBianca, 44, and his wife Rosemary, 38, who owned a chain of Hollywood markets, in the LaBianca home the night after the slaughter at the Tate estate.

If prosecutors decide to use statements from Miss Atkins, who has said she was present at the killings, and if her attorneys request a separate trial for her, then under the law she can't be tried with the others, said Deputy Dist. Atty. Aaron Stovitz.

Judge Keene set Miss Atkins' trial for Feb. 9. He will hear pleas Monday from Manson, Mrs. Kasabian and Miss Van Houten.

Attorney General Fights Penn Central

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Atty. Gen. Paul Brown asked the Interstate Commerce Commission Tuesday to dismiss a Penn Central application to abandon 17 miles of track between Orville in Wayne County and Holmesville in Holmes County.

Brown said Penn Central has been "hiding behind the jurisdictional skirts" of the ICC to delay court action on a suit filed by the state seeking to have rail service restored in the area. The railroad suspended service last July 15.
